Theater Arts & SEL: Conflict Resolution Program

Sacramento, CA
Innovation Track

Objective 6: The local community has a variety or programs that address risk factors/build protective factors in their local communities.

Request: $600,000

Abstract:

The mental health of students as well as students inability to engage with peers is promoting violence and destructive coping mechanisms. Following the theory of change that utilizing theater arts as a tool to teach and practice conflict resolution strategies in the classroom will engage students and promote positive connections to peers while building community thus decreasing the risk factors associated with targeted violence, NorCal School of the Arts will create and implement a Theater Arts and Conflict Resolution Integration program to vulnerable populations in Sacramento’s title 1 schools.

NorCal School of the Arts project proposal includes professional development for the classroom teachers on theater arts & conflict resolution integrated strategies for the classroom as well as a series of classes for students taught by NorCal teaching artists. NorCal is currently in 150 classrooms in title 1 schools in Sacramento City Unified School District providing Theater Arts & SEL classes, serving over 4000 students. This proposal aims to expand the program and create a new curriculum that engages students in conflict resolution and violence prevention strategies through a kinesthetic, artistic approach using theater arts exercises, theater games and role playing situations of conflict to engage the students in practicing nonviolent solutions.

PROJECT OVERVIEW

NorCal School of the Arts Theater & Conflict Resolution Integration Program

Northern California School of the Arts (NorCal SOTA) mission is to provide a holistic, individualized and professional training approach that supports artists from diverse communities to create, express, and participate in theater arts educational opportunities. Through arts engagement, students are empowered to embrace social and emotional learning strategies as well as create a positive mindset towards themselves and their community.

NorCal School of the Arts teaching artists will teach 10 classes in 150 title one classrooms and this will in turn train classroom teachers at SCUSD schools to integrate theater arts & conflict resolution strategies into their curriculum and classroom culture. With this intentional integration of theater arts and conflict resolution, teachers will in turn use newly learned strategies to enable students to feel connected to peers as well as gain coping mechanisms to navigate this mental health crisis where students are finding it difficult to socialize and connect to their peers. This approach to conflict resolution and violence prevention tactics through an artistic, engaging process will promote student creativity, decrease student anxiety and depression and help students regain connection to self and community. All strategies given are “non-artist friendly” and will be within the classroom teachers abilities to repeat once the program is over. Teachers will have access to all the lesson plans to repeat the strategies and lessons for years to come.

The pandemic has magnified societal issues of inequities and microaggressions towards our students from marginalized communities and students now have the added task of processing this reality along with the aftermath of the pandemic. Through these classes, classroom teachers will learn tools to enable students to collaborate with their peers and through theater arts, informed by SEL strategies, guide and challenge their class to celebrate diversity while promoting acceptance and skills to resolve conflict in a positive manner.

Classroom Teachers will participate in a survey assessment to evaluate pre and post program effectiveness of NorCal’s teaching strategies and post effectiveness and impact of the program. After each session classroom teachers fill out a survey to provide feedback on how the lesson impacted the classroom.

The initial survey assessment will provide a baseline for evaluation of program goals. Teaching artists will utilize formative and summative assessments to evaluate the impact of the program to share with stakeholders. Student names and information will not be discussed or mentioned to maintain privacy.
TIMEFRAME

In October, year 1, Executive Director of Nor Cal School of the Arts will design Theater Arts/Conflict Resolution curriculum while working with SCUSD Social Emotional Learning (SEL) staff and Conflict resolution consultant Kelsey Thompson-Briggs to infuse arts strategies with conflict resolution and social, emotional learning strategies. Scheduling will begin for all the classroom teachers to receive the theater arts/conflict resolution classes and professional development sessions.

In November-February, NorCal teaching artists will work with classroom teachers and provide the integrated classes for students. These professional development sessions as well as classes will continue through December and January. Each grade level will have a developmentally appropriate arts and conflict resolution curriculum. In February, the Executive Director will work with classroom teachers and teaching artists to evaluate impact and create an impact report for all stakeholders. Assessments and classroom teacher feedback will happen throughout the process to ensure effective delivery and compliance with the grant. Student identification will be confidential and no names of students will be mentioned in the evaluation process.

This program will take place over 2 years and each year 150 classrooms will be provided the program with 10 classes for each classroom. NorCal School of the Arts will continue to be a resource for 150 classroom teachers as well as all the former teachers that have participated in NorCal’s programs.

There will be 3 convenings of all the classroom teachers in the program throughout the fall of each year to offer continued training and an introduction to violence prevention and resources to support classroom teachers and the full district. 2-3 Community round tables will take place via zoom to include families of students receiving the classes to ensure the families are also aware of the conflict resolution strategies.

Northern California School of the Arts, Executive Director, Michele Hillen-Noufer, M.Ed will provide oversight, fiscal monitoring and management of the program to include budgeting, monthly reporting, final impact report and all scheduling of professional developments for classroom teachers.

1. Needs Assessment

Decades of research demonstrates participation in theater arts offers students a toolbox of fundamental skills that will enhance their ability to succeed in school and beyond. The benefits of theater arts education for low income children are especially profound. Specifically, studies have shown that theater arts instruction and the creative process associated with theater helps students to better succeed at school as they garner new ways of learning, creating, and focusing. They also gain life skills such as enhanced empathy, greater sense of confidence, a deeper understanding of their identity which for many, has the impact of alleviating mental health issues. Since theater instruction nurtures creative thinking, it encourages students to unlock the possibilities and to foster innovations toward solutions in all areas of their life. Students also become more proficient at many skills that will help them later in the job market, including: Public Speaking, Time Management, Project Management Skills, Communication and Collaboration Skills.

Knowing that everyone has a different learning style and that we all better respond to different types of teaching techniques, NorCal teaching artists work with teachers on how to recognize the most effective learning needs of their students. In doing so, the NorCal teaching artists provide the classroom teachers with associated learning techniques to make it easier for their students to learn conflict resolution and violence prevention strategies.

Studies have shown theater provides a community experience that educates and enhances community identity, a sense of connection, and raises social awareness for others. By getting children involved earlier in theater, they better understand their world and the value of theater in developing common values within the context of their community. Moreover, studies have shown that theater not only provides our children with positive after-school activities but also leads to other responsible civic engagement and has a direct correlation to a reduction of crime and delinquency.

Educators are experiencing the challenge of navigating teaching in a world with social media and increased screen time for students outside of school hours. Educators seek to try to provide an environment that speaks to the whole child. Teachers are challenged to teach the content subjects such as math, science, ELA while also responding to the extreme isolation, lack of normal connection and lack of social interaction students have with peers as well as address students extreme anxiety and depression symptoms due to the effects of covid-19.

According to the US Library of Medicine, National Institutes of Health, on Covid-19 student impact, “Isolation, contact restrictions and economic shutdown... have the potential to threaten the mental health of children. Anxiety, lack of peer contact and reduced opportunities for stress regulation are main concerns. Another main threat is an increased risk for parental mental illness, domestic violence and child maltreatment. Especially for children and adolescents with special needs or disadvantages, such as disabilities, trauma experiences, already existing mental health problems, migrant background and low socioeconomic status, this may be a particularly challenging time.”

The National Health Council conducted a study that showed, younger populations including teens and young adults (25<) are being hit particularly hard by anxiety and depression. In May 2020, these populations were experiencing higher rates of anxiety and depression than any other single age group. Anxiety rates for this age group were around 80% of screened participants. 90% of screened participants in this age group were also experiencing symptoms of depression. Studies also show a disproportionate impact on students living in poverty and students of color. The teachers participating in the NorCal School of the Arts professional development series are teaching in schools with the most vulnerable student populations including disenfranchised and marginalized communities.

Across all of our programs, most students come from Sacramento City Unified School District Schools including our Outreach program, Corps program, Camps, Classes and Leadership Institute.
2. PROGRAM DESIGN AND LOGIC MODEL

PROBLEM STATEMENT:

“A majority of school shooters report mental health problems such as depression and/or suicidal thoughts. One in 5 young people struggles with severe mental health issues, with many others reporting less severe mental health problems. Moreover, 75% of these individuals experiencing mental health issues never receive treatment.” Social and emotional learning initiatives, such as the integrated program NorCal School of the Arts offers, guide students in practicing empathy, anger management, impulse control and problem-solving.

PROGRAM GOALS AND OBJECTIVES:

In Goal 3 of the strategic framework it states: A 2018 U.S. Secret Service National Threat Assessment Center (NTAC) review of mass attacks in public spaces found: Two-thirds had histories of mental health symptoms, including depressive, suicidal, and psychotic symptoms. NorCal School of the Arts innovative program helps students feel connected to one another and supports student self expression while providing an artistic outlet and understanding of non-violent responses to conflict.

The goal is to lower risk factors associated with violent acts of domestic terrorism through the use of theater arts and conflict resolution integrated strategies.

A. The strategies provided in the professional training sessions will enable classroom teachers to impact students and address student extreme isolation, lack of normal connection and social interaction with peers as well as address students extreme anxiety and depression symptoms due to the aftermath of the pandemic. With this intentional integration of arts and conflict resolution for classroom teachers, outcomes will include a. Increased ability for teachers to positively affect student connection to peers and practice a positive approach for students to interact during a conflict
   b. Increased ability for teachers to provide students coping mechanisms
   c. Teaching artists will enable classroom teachers to positively affect
      i. increased student creativity,
      ii. decreased anxiety and depression
      iii. students' connection to self, peers and community.

More Goals Articulated:

Goal 2: Through the Theater Arts & Conflict Resolution Integration Program students will utilize the theatrical device of the rehearsal process to rehearse positive responses and effective communication when a conflict arises. This will enable the automatic response that has been practiced and rehearsed. Just as performing in front of an audience is stressful, an actor immediately falls back on the many rehearsals and does what has been programmed. When a stressful conflict arises students will have been given tools, a guided script and rehearsal process to guide them in resolving the conflict. This will become an automatic response and normal response for the students when conflict arises.

2:1 The program will give students guidance and affirmation around participation that is intentional, self-reflective and expressive of their experiences.

2:2 Classroom teachers will learn tools to enable students to collaborate with their peers and through the art form, informed by SEL strategies, guide and challenge their class to celebrate diversity.

2:3 Teaching artists will train and provide classroom teachers tools to engage the students in formative assessments and students will learn to assess themselves and their peers in a positive and constructive discernment process.

2:4 Through the artistic process students continue to find their identity and learn to trust themselves and their decision-making abilities.

2:5 Through the social emotional learning components of the activities taught by teaching artists in the training sessions, students discover coping mechanisms and strategies to get through any feelings of anxiety around conflict and have confidence in their abilities to advocate for themselves while remaining respectful of others.

Community Outcomes:

A. This program will have a lasting positive effect on 150 classroom teachers and 4000 students and their families as they learn conflict resolution and violence prevention strategies in a creative and engaging way.

Community outcome, through the training of teachers, includes:

a. engaged students
b. connected students
c. provides new strategies and coping skills for teachers, students and families in dealing with the overwhelming mental health impact of the pandemic including isolation, lack of social interaction and connection.

B. Systems Outcomes:

(A) The grant, through a collaboration with NorCal School of the Arts and the Social Emotional Learning & VAPA Departments of Sacramento City Unified School District, supports the theater and conflict resolution development of 4000 students at SCUSD

(i) This curriculum will be made available for all teachers at the Sacramento City Unified School District to have further impact in providing specific Theater arts and SEL:
Conflict resolution integrated strategies to all teachers in the district
(II) The program will aid in overall improvement in classroom teaching practices in vapa standards and SEL
(III) Support schoolwide and district wide goals of providing a safe learning environment
Theory of Change:

Utilizing theater arts as a tool to teach and practice conflict resolution strategies in the classroom will engage students and promote positive connections to peers while building community and student agency, thus decreasing the risk factors associated with targeted violence.

Contextual Factors/Underlying Assumptions: Teaching life skills such as conflict resolution through theater arts engages students in a kinesthetic learning model that is more engaging to students with shortened attention spans due to increased screen time among young people. Arts integration also provides access for students with learning differences and English Language Learners. Within a theater rehearsal process, the young actor practices lines to eventually perform (high stress situation) in front of others from memory. The assumption is that through the rehearsal process and partnering with the classroom teacher to implement a year-long strategy of specific prompts to resolve conflict effectively, students will develop a memorized approach to prompts leading to a successful resolution of the conflict. When faced with a challenging situation (conflict being potentially high stress) those students will lean on the memorized prompts. This will provide student agency and will stay with them through their lifetime.

Likelihood of Success: NorCal School of the Arts has a track record in the Sacramento City Unified School District (SCUSD) of providing theater arts classes and partnering with classroom teachers. This current school year we are in 150 classrooms and partnering with 150 classes. NorCal started with 140 classrooms and a Principal heard about the program and worked with the district to add her school to the program bumping the total to 150 classrooms in SCUSD. 92% of the current classroom teachers participating in NorCal Theater classes for their classrooms said students were more engaged in the rest of the school day after NorCal theater class. 99% of teachers felt NorCal’s current program was valuable to their students. This sets NorCal School of the Arts up for success in implementing a curriculum that prevents violence through weaving conflict resolution strategies into the lesson plans. With already 150 classroom teachers in the network, these teachers would be informed of TVTP resources, red flags, risk factors and resources will also be provided for the families on targeted violence prevention and conflict resolution through community zoom round tables.

The Logic Model illuminates the connection between the District administrators, previously invested in NorCal School of the Arts programs and the combined impact of the classroom teachers, NorCal Teaching Artists, curriculum development, Social emotional learning and conflict resolution trainings from experts at the District to impact short and long term goals on violence prevention.

Past surveys from NorCal School of the Arts programs in SCUSD show 93% of classroom teachers stated that NorCal Teaching Artists provided opportunities to make life learning connections in the classes. NorCal School of the Arts meets the innovation criteria because while the Theater Arts & SEL integrated program has been overwhelmingly supported in Sacramento City Unified School District, the approach of providing conflict resolution integrated with theater arts to prevent targeted violence and terrorism has not been implemented before.

Inventory of Programs: There are many programs that serve SCUSD after school, including arts programs but there are no arts programs who intentionally weave conflict resolution and violence prevention into their curriculum.

NorCal’s proposed program meets Objective 6: The local community has a variety of programs that address risk factors/build protective factors in their local communities by addressing the mental health issues of isolation and anxiety and providing students the tools to communicate effectively and resolve conflict peacefully.

Project Goal Statement:

Nu Art Education, Inc. DBA NorCal School of the Arts aims to prevent targeted violence and terrorism by promoting and emphasizing conflict resolution principles integrated with theater arts education. The goal is to lower risk factors associated with violent acts of domestic terrorism through the use of theater arts and conflict resolution integrated strategies. Nu Art Education, Inc. DBA NorCal School of the Arts is an innovative theater arts educational organization that brings theater arts classes integrated with Social Emotional Learning (SEL) strategies to students across Sacramento’s Title 1 schools. The integration of theater arts and conflict resolution helps strengthen resistance to violent extremism by integrating theater education, conflict resolution and helping students gain a strong identity and connection to community. Throughout the project, students will participate in creating devised theatrical works that deal with conflicts while learning to express their emotions in a positive, creative and collaborative way and use best practices for resolving conflict. Students share performances with their school community and classroom teacher and parent surveys and roundtables will be held to discuss the impact of the program and to provide the community (student families) with the same conflict resolution tools the students are receiving.

Target Population:

3. ORGANIZATION AND KEY PERSONNEL

NorCal School of the Arts is a non-profit 501c3 arts education organization serving the greater Sacramento community including 4000 students from title 1 schools, from vulnerable communities, in Sacramento City Unified School District. NorCal School of the Arts also provides a Classes & Camps Program, Performing Arts Corps 9 month training program for middle-high school students as well as the NorCal Leadership Institute and College Counseling Program.

NorCal School of the Arts, Executive Director, Michele Hillen-Noufer, M.Ed has partnered with SCUSD since 2011 creating and implementing theater arts programs and most recently with NorCal School of the Arts to design programming and curriculum that weaves Social Emotional Learning strategies and the arts to address students mental health issues. Michele is an arts educator, administrator and has a background as a professional actor, director and choreographer. After receiving her Masters in Education, she began writing curriculum and hiring and training teaching artists to implement a scaffolded, standards based curriculum. For an in depth look at the impact of NorCal School of the Arts view a video created by Sacramento City Unified School District.
https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=4HRH2f7tk.

Kelsey Thompson-Briggs is a peacebuilding practitioner and facilitator with nearly a decade of experience in program design, program management, training and facilitation. Kelsey's experience includes facilitating reconciliation and peace education programs for all ages in Northern Ireland, and helping to grow and globalize Peace First's programs supporting youth-led social change. She holds a B.A. in Peace and Conflict Studies from U.C. Berkeley and a M.Phil in Conflict Resolution and Reconciliation, from Trinity College Dublin.
Michael Ortiz has a Masters in Education and is the project manager on the Theater Arts and SEL integrated program in the schools and is excited to bring conflict resolution curriculum to the classrooms with this new proposed program. His extensive background in theater, music and education helps support the teaching artists and classroom teachers.

NorCal School of the Arts teaching artist, Dorothea Bonneau has an extensive background in writing curriculum and teaching students in marginalized communities. NorCal Teaching Artist, Elaine Douglas is a retired Principal and is slated to develop a team of NorCal School of the Arts teaching artists to create culturally relevant curriculum for NorCal’s programs.

4. SUSTAINABILITY

The NorCal School of the Arts organization was created to have both tuition based programs as well as programs funded through grants and district contracts. NorCal School of the Arts theater arts and SEL integrated classes meet several educational standards under English Language Arts (ELA) as well as Visual and Performing Arts (VAPA) standards and Social Emotional Learning therefore filling a need of school districts. There is a need to provide arts and reach students with learning differences as well as English Language Learners. NorCal School of the Arts provides kinesthetic learning and speaks to all students with differentiated learning levels.

NorCal School of the Arts income streams include contracts with districts, individual schools, PTA’s, after school providers as well as through grants. In 2020, NorCal School of the Arts received a $135,000 Education grant from the City of Sacramento and in 2021 we were specifically contracted with the school district to continue and expand the work. The contract with SCUSD in 2021 doubled the impact from 70 classrooms in 2020 to 150 classrooms in 2021. NorCal went from grant funding to contract funding through the district because of the value of the program.

NorCal has already grown into neighboring districts and has proven how to go from grant funding to sustainable funding. The new program Theater Arts & Conflict Resolution will utilize a similar model to prove the efficacy. NorCal has shown the ability to create valuable educational programs funded by grants and turned them into sustainable programs independent of federal, state or municipal funding.

5. BUDGET DETAIL AND NARRATIVE

BUDGET NARRATIVE:

The majority of the costs are personnel and all teaching artists must be employees due to the AB5 law. The program administrator will run the program with an assistant to help with scheduling the teaching artists in the classrooms as well as training sessions. NorCal will utilize an outside consulting firm to collate teacher evaluations data for an impact report. Curriculum will be created year 1 and then year 2 will be tweaked and reworked based on feedback from teaching artists and classroom teachers.

To Whom It May Concern,

On behalf of the Sacramento City Unified School District, we are honored to share our endorsement and support of the NorCal School of the Arts (Nu Art Education, Inc.) Theater Arts and Social Emotional Learning (SEL) program to include student strategies to address conflict resolution, effective communication, and violence prevention.

As a District, we work to provide opportunities for all students to learn, grow, and reach their greatness. We know that navigating distance learning during a global pandemic was incredibly challenging and has had detrimental effects on the social-emotional health and well-being of our students, even as they returned to the classroom. The needs of our students are our priority, which is why we have expanded our wrap-around support systems to help students navigate the challenges they are facing.

This is made possible in part by valuable partnerships with community organizations like the NorCal School of the Arts and their ability to serve our students with effective, data driven programming. For two years, SCUSD's partnership with the NorCal School of the Arts has delivered comprehensive, arts-based SEL programs to our teachers and students in our highest-need, Title I schools in the form of theater artist residencies and teacher training workshops.

The NorCal School of the Arts Theater/SEL program has proven to support our students on every level through social emotional, academic, and artistic growth as well as helping to bridge the learning gap with our English Language Learners. As a result of the program, students are more engaged in their learning, better equipped to return to school and rebuild social connections, and more confident in themselves and their ability to succeed in the future.

Over the past two years, this program has directly affected over 4000 students at all grade levels. This funding would allow SCUSD to continue and expand its partnership with the NorCal School of the Arts for another year while strategically weaving in violence prevention strategies and conflict resolution for our students. We fully support the NorCal school of the Arts and its arts education programs and hope we can continue to grow and expand this program in our district for years to come.

Sincerely,

Charles J. DeAngelus
Visual and Performing Arts Coordinator
Sacramento City Unified School District

Nu Art Education, Inc. aims to prevent targeted violence and terrorism by promoting social emotional learning strategies integrated with theater arts education. Nu Art Education, Inc. DBA NorCal School of the Arts is an innovative theater arts educational organization that brings theater arts classes integrated with Social Emotional Learning (SEL) strategies to students across Sacramento’s Title 1 schools. The integration of theater arts and SEL helps strengthen resistance to violent extremism by integrating theater education, conflict resolution and helping students gain a strong identity and connection to community. Throughout the project, students will participate in creating devised theatrical works that deal with modern issues while learning to express their emotions in a positive, creative and collaborative way. Students share performances after school for the community and parent and student roundtables will be held to discuss the impact of the program.
