SECTION III: GENERAL

A. LIMITATIONS:
The rates in this Agreement are subject to any statutory or administrative limitations and apply to a given grant, contract or other agreement only to the extent that funds are available. Acceptance of the rates is subject to the following conditions: (1) Only costs incurred by the organization were included in its facilities and administrative cost pools as finally accepted; such costs are legal obligations of the organization and are allowable under the governing cost principles; (2) The same costs that have been treated as facilities and administrative costs are not claimed as direct costs; (3) Similar types of costs have been accorded consistent accounting treatment; and (4) The information provided by the organization which was used to establish the rates is not later found to be materially incomplete or inaccurate by the Federal Government. In such situations the rate(s) would be subject to renegotiation at the discretion of the Federal Government.

B. ACCOUNTING CHANGES:
This Agreement is based on the accounting system purported by the organization to be in effect during the Agreement period. Changes to the method of accounting for costs which affect the amount of reimbursement resulting from the use of this Agreement require prior approval of the authorized representative of the cognizant agency. Such changes include, but are not limited to, changes in the charging of a particular type of cost from facilities and administrative to direct. Failure to obtain approval may result in cost disallowances.

C. FIXED RATES:
If a fixed rate is in this Agreement, it is based on an estimate of the costs for the period covered by the rate. When the actual costs for this period are determined, an adjustment will be made to a rate of a future year(s) to compensate for the difference between the costs used to establish the fixed rate and actual costs.

D. USE BY OTHER FEDERAL AGENCIES:
The rates in this Agreement were approved in accordance with the authority in Title 2 of the Code of Federal Regulations, Part 200 (2 CFR 200), and should be applied to grants, contracts and other agreements covered by 2 CFR 200, subject to any limitations in A above. The organization may provide copies of the Agreement to other Federal Agencies to give them early notification of the Agreement.

E. OTHER:
If any Federal contract, grant or other agreement is reimbursing facilities and administrative costs by a means other than the approved rate(s) in this Agreement, the organization should (1) credit such costs to the affected programs, and (2) apply the approved rate(s) to the appropriate base to identify the proper amount of facilities and administrative costs allocable to these programs.

Project Abstract:

This project seeks to develop a robust and sustainable local prevention framework against targeted violence in Southern Illinois by engaging a diverse array of local stakeholders to create a whole of society approach to violence prevention. The project is built around three specific project types under the promising practices track: raising societal awareness, media literacy and online critical thinking initiatives and civic engagement. The first phase of the project deploys, and analyzes surveys of 41 counties in Southern Illinois that measures risk factors and field tests team-designed interventions built to lower political tensions and reduce support for political violence. The second phase focuses on implementing the preventive framework and has three main goals: 1) enhancing societal awareness among members of law enforcement and community/faith organizations on the current threat environment in the region by conducting a series of training sessions, 2) encouraging sustainable community engagement, education and resilience against radicalization to violence through training sessions for local community organizations that are tailored to prevalent local risk factors and 3) developing media literacy and online critical thinking skills among local college students, so that they are better equipped to combat an ever increasing volume of extremist content in the online/digital space.
1. Needs Assessment

The Department of Homeland Security’s Notice of Funding Opportunity notes that, “Domestic violent extremists (DVEs) represent the most persistent terrorism-related threat facing the United States.” Recently, increases in anti-government and anti-authority violent extremism and attacks by lone actors or small groups of individuals are particularly concerning, especially those unknown to law enforcement.

Those known for having heightened likelihood of engaging in lone-actor terrorism include males (99-100% of lone actors), single adults (80-81% of lone actors), those who live alone (44% of lone actors), are unemployed (38-71% of lone actors), have a criminal record (55-58% of lone actors), and possess prior military experience (28-32% of lone actors) (Smith 2018). The 41 Illinois counties that this proposal addresses have 1,605,425 people and contain both suburban and rural areas. Table 1 shows that these 41 counties contain greater than average percentages of many of these demographic characteristics compared to the U.S. population. This makes Southern Illinois an ideal place for developing new prevention frameworks and strengthening existing ones.

Data Sources for Prevalence in Southern Illinois and the U.S.: Census Bureau 2020; Bureau of Labor Statistics December 2021; Emsi Q1 2022 Data Set using data from the American Community Survey.²

Phase 1 of this project employs surveys of up to 3000 residents across these counties, which encompass Illinois State Police patrol districts 11, 12, 13, 18, 19, and 22. These districts substantially overlap with the jurisdiction of the United States District Court for the Southern District of Illinois.

Existing prevention frameworks focus primarily on law enforcement and governmental agencies, such as the work of the Anti-Terrorism Advisory Council in the Southern District of Illinois and Madison and St. Clair County’s work with the Illinois Terrorism Task Force. Most of these law enforcement prevention framework efforts predate the recent rise in anti-government and anti-authority violent extremism, which is one of the gaps our proposed project seeks to fill.

Phase 2 of this project has three community-focused components informed by the results of our Phase 1 surveys: training of members of law enforcement, training of community and faith leaders, and training of college students. The latter two will help expand and develop community capacity to prevent targeted violence, while the former will strengthen existing frameworks.

Two training sessions will be developed for members of law enforcement. One session will focus on members of the Anti-Terrorism Advisory Council (ATAC) in the Southern District of Illinois. This session will brief member officers on the current threat environment in Southern Illinois and citizens’ knowledge levels of what to do if someone they know has been radicalized or is making threats of targeted violence. The other, longer training session, targets those law enforcement officers with little to no training in counterterrorism but who would like to learn how they can help prevent targeted attacks by domestic violent extremists. This helps expand existing law enforcement capacity.

Community training sessions engage community and faith leaders and will be built around findings from interventions in the survey that seek to reduce support for political violence. We plan to partner with organizations like Southern Illinois University Edwardsville’s Office of Educational Outreach and Lifelong Learning Program and the Center for Racial Harmony in Belleville. We have letters of commitment from both organizations. We will concentrate the community training sessions in the larger population centers of Madison, St. Clair, and Jackson counties. We will invite members of community organizations throughout the region to participate.

Meanwhile, the training for college students focuses on online aspects of terrorism and targeted violence. An online unit on media literacy and critical thinking embedded in introductory-level political science courses at Southern Illinois University Edwardsville will equip college students to recognize and resist attempts at radicalization. If successful, our goal is to expand this training to local community colleges.

The involvement of a broad and diverse array of stakeholders ranging from law enforcement to community leaders to faith organizations, and citizens from college age to senior citizens, allows us to develop a whole of society approach to violence prevention.

2. Program Design

Problem statement

Political extremism and support for political violence in recent years has risen sharply among United States citizens. This rise heightens the risk for targeted violence and domestic terrorism. Based on data from the Center for Strategic and International Studies, the highest number of domestic terror plots and attacks in the US were recorded in 2020 and 2021 (Jones 2022).\(^3\) Local communities are often at the forefront of combating threats of targeted violence and terrorism. The Department of Homeland Security has established the Center for Prevention Programs and Partnerships (CP3) to empower local communities to develop and sustain local prevention frameworks. Local efforts often focus on creating awareness of the radicalization process, effectively identifying risk factors for and protective factors against radicalization and engaging in the broadest possible set of stakeholders to facilitate a wide-ranged and holistic approach to violence prevention. Such efforts are pivotal in preventing individuals from radicalizing to violence and intervening with individuals who have already radicalized.

A vast body of empirical literature has identified an array of demographic characteristics that are known to heighten an individual’s propensity to carry out acts of targeted violence or terrorism. As mentioned above, the 41 counties in Southern Illinois which are subject of this proposal, contain greater than average percentages of many of these demographic characteristics compared to the overall U.S. population. Therefore, the focus of this project in developing and maintaining a sustainable and robust preventive framework to reduce the risk of violent extremism in Southern Illinois is very apt.

Program description

The project seeks to develop and sustain local prevention frameworks by applying the Promising Practices Track. Specifically, the project incorporates the following project types identified in the funding notice: 1) Raising Societal Awareness; 2) Media Literacy and Online Critical Thinking Initiatives; and 3) Civic Engagement. The combination of these three project types helps reach diverse segments of the local community\(^4\) and facilitates a comprehensive local prevention approach that directly aligns with Goal One of the DHS Strategic Plan that focuses on counter-terrorism and homeland threats. It also orients with four specific priorities identified by the Targeted Violence and Terrorism Prevention Grant Program: implementing prevention capabilities in small and mid-sized communities, addressing online aspects of terrorism and targeted violence, preventing domestic violent extremism, and enhancing local threat assessment and management capabilities.

The proposed project proceeds in two phases. In phase one, the research team will deploy and analyze the results of climate surveys of residents in Southern Illinois in Spring 2023. The team will disseminate multiple surveys of up to 3,000 residents from the 41 counties in Southern Illinois identified above. These surveys assess the community prevalence of: 1) risk factors for engaging in targeted violence or terrorism; 2) exposure to extremist content online; and 3)

\(^4\) The local community is defined as local and state law enforcement officials, community and faith organizations in several counties in Southern Illinois. We define a resident of Southern Illinois as someone who lives in one or more of the following counties in Illinois: Alexander, Bond, Calhoun, Clark, Clay, Clinton, Crawford, Cumberland, Edwards, Effingham, Fayette, Franklin, Gallatin, Greene, Hamilton, Hardin, Jackson, Jasper, Jefferson, Jersey, Johnson, Lawrence, Macoupin, Madison, Marion, Massac, Montgomery, Monroe, Perry, Pope, Pulaski, Randolph, Richland, Saline, St Clair, Union, Wabash, Washington, Wayne, White, and Williamson.
knowledge of what to do when someone shows signs of radicalization or threatening targeted violence or terrorist acts. Within the surveys, respondents will be randomly assigned to either a control group or will experience one of three interventions aimed at reducing support for or vulnerability to appeals for politically oriented violent extremism. The effectiveness of each intervention will be gauged by asking a series of pointed post-intervention questions from the respondents.

Collectively, the interventions remind partisans about the frequency with which partisan control changes at different levels of government, their common identity as Americans, and redirects respondents in a way that counters disinformation campaigns online with detailed counter-narratives. We anticipate that these interventions will decrease levels of anti-democratic attitudes, lessen support for political and partisan-based violence, and reduce partisan animosity. In addition, the interventions aim to make respondents pause and reflect on their beliefs and opinions vis-à-vis others different to them. Empirical evidence shows that dislike and contempt of those holding opposing political views has grown significantly in recent years (Iyengar et al. 2019). The utility of these proposed interventions is that each one compels respondents to step outside of their comfort zones and contemplate from the vantage point of others. It is hoped that such interventions will potentially help respondents to consider long-term self-interest, contemplate vestiges of a common identity and discern that previously held dislike for opposing views might be misplaced. In conjunction with demographic information gained from the surveys, the research team hopes to use findings from the interventions to guide the presentation of material in the various training sessions.

Phase Two develops, refines, and implements local prevention frameworks from Summer 2023 through Spring 2024. A key component of this phase is providing training to many local stakeholders, developed around the findings from the surveys. Specifically, the project team aims to conduct information and training sessions with key local and state stakeholders such as members of law enforcement, community leaders, faith organizations, and college students. The overarching goals of these sessions will be to 1) inform stakeholders of the current climate in Southern Illinois in terms of vulnerability to terrorism or targeted violence; 2) identify and implement key lessons learned from the interventions; and 3) provide local stakeholders with useful tools to strengthen preexisting prevention frameworks.

The second phase is built around the three specific promising practices project types identified earlier. To raise societal awareness in the local community, the team will conduct separate training/information sessions with state and local law enforcement officers and community/faith leaders. Toward this end, the results from the surveys on community prevalence of risk factors, level of exposure to extremist content online, and knowledge of what to do when someone shows signs of threatening targeted violence or terrorist activity will be used to brief stakeholders on the current climate in Southern Illinois. We will consult with and customize existing DHS awareness briefs to fit the local context.

Two training sessions will be developed for members of law enforcement. As mentioned earlier, one session will focus on the local ATAC in the Southern District of Illinois and the other session will aim to recruit at least two law enforcement officers from each of the 41 counties that make up the local community. Moreover, the potential for holding additional virtual training sessions for both ATAC members and local law enforcement officers will be explored. These sessions raise societal awareness on risk and protective factors associated with radicalization and violent extremism and in turn, help expand existing law enforcement capacity. Delivering awareness training to leaders and members of community and faith organizations is also integral to developing a robust prevention framework with several community organizations. We have included letters of support from two such organizations: SIUE’s Office of Educational Outreach and Lifelong Learning Program and the Center for Racial Harmony in Belleville. The goal of the community training is to educate the public about the threats and challenges posed by violent extremism.

Encouraging higher levels of civic engagement at the local community level is also important for creating durable local prevention frameworks. Toward this end and in conjunction with partner organizations, the team plans to conduct at least three training sessions for community organizations, faith leaders and other engaged community members that is tailored to risk factors prevalent in the Southern Illinois community. Such sessions are also useful to inform the community on possible protective factors in Southern Illinois that mitigate against radicalization. In addition, at least one train the trainer session is planned to facilitate supportive ties across participants and spread understanding of threat prevention techniques that bolster social cohesion and reduce inter-group tensions. The train the trainer session will also create at least 4 cohort groups to engage in small group discussions and activities with the aim of facilitating lasting ties within and across local communities and organizations. Collectively, these efforts enhance civic engagement by encouraging community involvement, education and resilience against radicalization to violence.

The development of media literacy and online critical thinking education is vital to the overall success of this proposal. Given the exponential growth in the presence of violent extremists in the online space, it is imperative to emphasize online dimensions of radicalization and violence. This aspect of the project is geared towards training college students. Students enrolled in two specific introductory political science courses at SIUE (Introduction to American Politics and Introduction to International Relations) will form the cohort of trainees and will receive an online unit on media literacy and critical training as a compulsory part of these two courses. Based on past enrollment patterns, these two courses will provide the project team with access to approximately 250 students (American Politics) and 70 students (International Relations) per academic year. The unit will cover an array of topics including, but not limited to, understanding bias in communication, verifying sources of information, presence of information echo chambers, effects of social media on political polarization and online recruitment methods and techniques used by extremist groups. The project team is exploring the possibility of expanding such training to students in local community colleges as well.

Program Goals and Objectives

Goal One: Raise societal awareness among members of law enforcement and community and faith organizations in Southern Illinois on the current threat environment in the region by conducting a series of training sessions.

Specific objectives for attaining this goal include: training at least 20 members of the Anti-Terrorism Advisory Council in the Southern District of Illinois and 100 law enforcement officials with representation from each of the 41 counties to enhance awareness and knowledge on risk factors for radicalization to violence and protective factors against radicalization and conducting 3 training sessions for at least 60 community members on community risk factors for radicalization by the end of the program period.
Goal Two: Encourage sustainable community engagement, education and resilience against radicalization to violence through training sessions for community organizations, faith leaders and other engaged community members that is tailored to prevalent local risk factors.

Specific objectives for attaining this goal include: training at least 60 community members across 3 training sessions to enable them to successfully identify the most prominent risk factors for local radicalization, equip at least 20 community members to engage other local residents in programs that educate the public about risk factors through one train the trainer session and create at least 4 cohort groups to engage in small group discussions and activities within the train the trainer program to facilitate relationships within and across local communities and organizations by the end of the program period.

Goal Three: develop and enhance media literacy and online critical thinking skills among college students in Southern Illinois, so that they are more aware and equipped to combat an ever increasing volume of extremist content in the online/digital space, by providing them with a course unit focused on the online aspects of radicalization and violence.

Specific objectives for attaining this goal include: increasing knowledge among college students on online aspects of radicalization such as online recruitment methods offered by domestic violent extremists and FTOs, recognizing disinformation and effects of social media on polarization by providing approximately 320 SIUE undergraduate students enrolled in two specific courses offered by the Political Science Department with a compulsory course unit related to such matters by the end of the program period.

Logic Model
Program Evaluation

The project team will collect the number and basic demographic data of participants at each training session. We will evaluate the effectiveness of each training program through post-training surveys, as described more fully in the IMPs found in the appendix. Additionally, the community “train the trainer” session will use pre-test and post-test surveys and other assessment techniques as noted in the civic engagement IMP. An undergraduate research assistant will input these results so that program team members can analyze their effectiveness and share program reports with the OTVTP.

3. Organization and Key Personnel

Southern Illinois University Edwardsville (SIUE) is an accredited, nationally recognized university that provides students with a high quality, affordable education founded on a broad-based liberal education and enhanced by hands-on research and real-world experiences. SIUE awards degrees in undergraduate and graduate programs encompassing the arts, sciences, nursing, education, health, human behavior, business, engineering, as well as doctoral degrees in dental medicine, pharmacy, and nursing practice and educational leadership.

The University’s mission is: “Southern Illinois University Edwardsville is a student-centered educational community dedicated to communicating, expanding and integrating knowledge. In a spirit of collaboration enriched by diverse ideas, our comprehensive and unique array of undergraduate and graduate programs develops professionals, scholars and leaders who shape a changing world.” The University’s mission is supported by its values of citizenship, excellence, inclusion, integrity, and wisdom.

SIUE has a long history of serving the community through its East St. Louis Center, its Office of Educational Outreach, Lifelong Learning Institute, Successful Communities Collaborative, and other initiatives including the newly formed Center for Crime Prevention and Justice Research.

Dr. Suranjan Weeraratne, Principal Investigator, is Associate Professor of Political Science at SIUE. His scholarly research focuses on several areas of international and domestic security including terrorism, ethnic violence, and religious riots and he has published multiple articles in Terrorism and Political Violence. His recent work explores linkages between transnational terrorist organizations and local militant groups and assessing under what conditions various terrorist organizations resort to specific tactics such as suicide bombings. Prior to joining SIUE, Dr. Weeraratne was employed as a consultant at the World Bank in Washington DC for two years where he worked on issues of political violence and development. Dr. Weeraratne will use this expertise to contribute to the survey interventions, design and perform training sessions for law enforcement and community members, develop a media literacy unit for international relations courses, coordinate all aspects of grant management, and be part of the team that evaluates the effectiveness of the program.

Dr. Kenneth W. Moffett, co-Principal Investigator, is Professor of Political Science and serves as the Department’s Chair at SIUE. Dr. Moffett has extensive experience in data analytics and survey design. His relevant research expertise includes multiple publications on civic engagement and on the links between climate change and violence. Recently, Dr. Moffett was part of the American Political Science Association’s Civic Education Section’s Democracy vs. January 6 panel in Washington, D.C. Dr. Moffett will draw on this expertise to assist with the construction of the survey of community members, analyze the results of that survey, assist with designing and performing training sessions for law enforcement and community members and serve on the team that evaluates the effectiveness of the program.

Dr. Laurie L. Rice, co-Principal Investigator is Professor of Political Science at SIUE. Her relevant research expertise includes political communication and civic engagement, topics on which she has published multiple books and articles. Rice has experience designing surveys and a decade long track record of partnering with civic groups to increase civic education and engagement. In addition, while leading a travel study program to Northern Ireland, Rice learned political violence prevention techniques from the Police Service of Northern Ireland and a variety of community agencies. Dr. Rice will employ this expertise to assist with the construction of the survey of community members, design and perform training sessions for law enforcement and community members, lead the community train the trainer session, design a unit on media literacy for introductory American government courses, and will participate on the team that evaluates the effectiveness of the program.

Partner organizations include Center for Racial Harmony, which is dedicated to promoting understanding, cooperation, and communication among all races and ethnic groups, SIUE’s Office of Educational Outreach and Lifelong Learning Institute, and the Center for Crime Prevention and Justice Research, which seeks to expand research, training and technical assistance to our law enforcement partners in the region. Accompanying letters from each attest to their willingness to host and promote training sessions to their networks.

4. Sustainability

While the surveys identify the current threat climate will not be able to be repeated without additional grant funding, the lessons learned from the interventions embedded within them about reducing risks of domestic extremism will remain relevant. We anticipate the materials we develop for law enforcement can continue to be used by local law enforcement agencies beyond the grant period. We are designing the community training sessions so that they can continue to spread through the region after the grant period concludes. All community members who attend an initial training session will be invited to a second train the trainer session that equips them to conduct similar trainings for other community members and organizations. Team members will continue to serve as a resource to those who complete this training. The module on media literacy, critical thinking, and identifying and avoiding narratives meant to recruit and mobilize to violence that is developed for introductory political science classes will continue to be embedded in course offerings after the grant period concludes. Provided the program evaluation demonstrates the positive results we expect, the materials we develop could be adapted and applied in other regions.

5. Budget Detail and Narrative

Budget Worksheet
This budget worksheet contains the budget categories and federal request across all three grant categories (media literacy, civic engagement, and societal awareness). Societal awareness is the most important of the three projects, as the other projects (media literacy and civic engagement) cannot operate without the survey that is embedded into the societal awareness component. The civic engagement component is the second priority as it is central to the execution of this project’s community engagement piece. The media awareness component is the third priority as it engages young people with respect to their consumption of online information.

Personnel:

There are three faculty personnel on the grant: Drs. Suranjan Weeraratne, Laurie Rice, and Kenneth Moffett, and two undergraduate research assistants.

Dr. Suranjan Weeraratne is the principal investigator for the grant and will coordinate all activities for the grant. For this work, he will be compensated for three course releases (approx. 0.43-person months of effort for each) during the Fall 2023 and Spring 2024 semesters to reallocate time from his existing responsibilities to work on the project. He will also receive two months of summer salary during the Summer 2023 term and one month of summer salary during the Summer 2024 term to compensate him for work on the grant during that time of year, as faculty at SIUE are on nine-month contracts by default.

Dr. Laurie Rice is co-investigator for the grant. For this work, she will be compensated for three course releases (approx. 0.36-person months of effort for each) during the Fall 2023 and Spring 2024 semesters to reallocate time from her existing responsibilities to work on the project. She will also receive two months of salary during the Summer 2023 semester and one month of salary in the Summer 2024 term to compensate her for work on the grant during that time of year, as faculty at SIUE are on nine-month contracts by default.

Dr. Kenneth Moffett is co-investigator for the grant. For his work, he will be compensated for one course release (approx. 0.36-person months of effort) during the Spring 2023 semester, and one month summer salary in each of the Summer 2023 and Summer 2024 terms to compensate him for his work on the project.

For all faculty members, summer salaries are calculated based on 1/9 of their annual salaries, as they are paid on nine-month contracts for work during the academic year. Course releases are compensated at reduced rates during the Fall and Spring terms, as units hire outside instructors at those rates per the lecturers’ collective bargaining agreements.

6 If the societal awareness component is not funded, the survey costs will need to be redistributed across the remaining funded projects.

Finally, the undergraduate research assistants will work for the team during the Spring 2023 through Spring 2024 semesters and will be responsible for collecting contact information for community organizations and transcribing and analyzing the evaluation surveys that community and law enforcement individuals will receive at the end of the training. These surveys will be used by the team to evaluate the overall effectiveness of the program.

Fringe Benefits:

These benefits are calculated at SIUE’s federally negotiated rate for faculty and include University-sponsored health insurance coverage, pension contributions, among other costs. The faculty fringe benefit rate for FY2023 is 25.8% and will increase on July 1 of each project period by one percentage-point. The cost of these benefits is partly indexed to each member of the team’s annual salary. No fringe benefits are calculated on student wages.

Travel:

There are $4,000 in travel expenses connected to the grant. These expenses will provide mileage reimbursement to the members of the team for travel to and from the varying training sites across Southern Illinois.

Supplies:

There are various supplies that the team will need to complete the training including photocopies, binders, folders, flip charts, easels, markers, notepads, and more.

Contractual and Other:

There are three components of the contractual services. First, varying survey providers will be paid $49,999 to conduct surveys of random samples of Southern Illinois residents in the spring 2023. These providers have expertise in gathering samples from unique subpopulations using web-based panels that cost less than surveys performed by other routes. Second, police officers will be compensated for up to three hours each to participate in trainings. Police officers need to be compensated to participate, or else they are unlikely to complete the training. Third, the Southwestern Illinois Law Enforcement Council and community organizations charge fees to use their spaces. Finally, the Center for Crime Prevention and Justice charges for the use of its space as well.

Indirect Costs:

The University’s federally negotiated indirect cost rate is 44.5% and is calculated on the total direct cost. Cognizant agency: DHHS. The indirect cost rate agreement is attached.

1. This is a conservative estimate. Given that the Anti-Terrorism Task Force consists of a diverse range of organizations/members, we aim to recruit a healthy mix of representatives from private, local, state and federal organizations.

2. Given that the local community for this project consists of 41 counties in Southern Illinois, we aim to provide training to at least 2 law enforcement officers from each county.

3. This is a conservative minimum based on our past experiences with community organizations and community civic engagement events. An undergraduate research assistant will collect data on additional community organizations throughout the 41 counties and their contact information. We hope this will enable us to increase the number of training sessions and their reach.

1 This is a conservative minimum based on our past experiences with community organizations and community civic engagement events. An undergraduate research assistant will collect data on additional community organizations throughout the 41 counties and their contact information. We hope this will enable us to increase the number of training sessions and their reach. Participants will be given a survey to complete at the end of the training program that will help us measure their ability to identify risk factors for radicalization.

2 This is a conservative estimate that assumes only 1/3 of those who complete the initial short training will want to attend the longer train-the-trainer session that prepares them to be a community facilitator. The ability of these discussions to reduce political tensions and reduce support for political violence will be established through the results of both the survey of Southern Illinois and the surveys from the prior training sessions.

3 Our prior classroom experience tells us that 4-5 is the high end of the ideal group size for completing activities while building strong ties among group members. Thus, if 20 people participate in the train-the-trainer program, there should be at least 4 cohort groups.

   If yes, please provide the type of compensation and when participants will receive it:

   Participants may be compensated by the survey providers and will receive that compensation upon completion of the survey.

13. Is data being collected or accessed?
   ☒ Yes  □ No

   If so, what type(s) of data will be collected or accessed, will identifiers be provided/recorded with the data, how will the data be stored (i.e., on DHS or non-DHS servers/property), and how data will be used/analyzed (to include individuals who will have access to the analyzed data/final report); i.e., internal review only, publication, presentation of results at a professional meeting, etc.

   *If data will be procured from a commercially available source, please provide the name of the source and the type of data-sharing agreement in place:

| The team will gather data on attitudes about political violence, demographic information, and political views. This data with subject identifiers will be stored on password protected files that are only available to members of the research team. The data will be analyzed by members of the research team using their University-owned computers. The analyzed data will be presented as part of workshops in the Southern Illinois region to reduce political violence. |

To whom it may concern,

The SIUE Center for Crime Prevention and Justice Research is part of the Belleville Justice Center, which will provide a campus of criminal justice-oriented services and training opportunities for law enforcement and community organizations in Southern Illinois, including forensic science labs, a police academy and an institute for criminal justice reform and community awareness. Our center’s specific mission is to expand research, training and technical assistance to our law enforcement partners in the region. Our center will open its doors July 1st of 2022 and we are excited to be approached about participating on a faculty-led project.

The grant proposal “Enhancing local capacity to prevent targeted violence in Southern Illinois” aligns well with our mission and goals and we believe this project can make a positive contribution to preventing (domestic) terrorism. As such we are offering use of our center’s facilities and network to provide the delivery of training to regional law enforcement officers involved in terrorism prevention.

We believe prevention efforts for (domestic) terrorism are currently woefully underdeveloped in Southern Illinois and see this project as a well thought out and evidence-based program that addresses terrorism from a locally informed context. We are excited to see this program come to fruition and want to offer our fullest support to the project.

Should you have any questions feel free to reach out to me. With friendly regards,

To whom it may concern:

The Center for Racial Harmony is a third-party neutral, community-based organization. We were founded upon the principles of understanding, cooperation, and communication among all citizens in the community. Obviously, violence of any kind threatens the very essence of those principles.

The initiatives upon which the Departments of Political Science and Criminal Justice at Southern Illinois University Edwardsville are embarking certainly align with our stated mission.

Our organization is wholeheartedly committed to supporting the university’s effort. We are more than willing to offer our services and facilities in any way deemed necessary. In the past, we have hosted community forums organized to discuss various topics of community concern. Some of those topics included: community policing, which followed the civic unrest in nearby Ferguson, Missouri; the pros and cons of reparations for slavery; and youth to youth discussions which engaged high school students in resolving their most pressing concerns. We are also engaged with Belleville, IL organizations like the Juvenile Justice and Youth Coalition, and the Violence Prevention Center. Additionally, we collaborate with the Illinois Humanities organization in its program entitled Envisioning Justice.

If the Targeted Violence and Terrorism Prevention Program is implemented, we envision a scenario in which our organization could play a vital role. Therefore, we offer our emphatic support toward efforts to see it come to fruition.

Additional information regarding our organization and its work in the community can be found on our website https://centerforracialharmony.org/ and Facebook page Center for Racial Harmony St. Clair County.

Sincerely,

Donna M. Moody, President

RE: Targeted Violence and Terrorism Grant Program, Homeland Security

Dear Grant Application Team:

On behalf of Southern Illinois University Edwardsville’s Office of Online Services and Educational Outreach, I offer this letter of support for Ken Moffett, Laurie Rice and Suranjan Weeraratne’s project titled Enhancing local capacity to prevent targeted violence in Southern Illinois. We are committed to supporting this project by connecting the grant team to our network of community members to offer training sessions or other related activities.

A significant component of this project, as outlined in phase two, is related to training that aims to build and strengthen frameworks that enhance the safety and well-being of the communities in the southernmost 41 counties of Illinois. The interventions proposed in this phase align with the mission of the Office of Online Services and Educational Outreach which includes serving members of our regional communities by providing access to educational opportunities through the agile development of relevant, collaborative programs and partnerships. Our office, with the support of the University, has cultivated partnerships with organizations in both the public and private sectors, with community leaders, and with community members at large. Our programs have provided access to training, education, and resources for more than 7,000 people annually across the region, and for that reason we are uniquely positioned to support the training and educational outreach goals of this project and beyond.

We look forward to collaborating with the grant team on their project which would expand awareness of targeted violence risks and support for violence prevention interventions in Southern Illinois communities.

Respectfully,

Mary Etting
Director
Online Services and Educational Outreach
Southern Illinois University Edwardsville

Subject: Letter of Confirmation for Political Science Courses

This memorandum confirms that the Department of Political Science is mindful of the contents of the grant proposal entitled, “Strengthening Local Prevention Frameworks against Targeted Violence in Southern Illinois” in which Dr. Suranjana Weeraratne is the Principal Investigator and with Drs. Kenneth W. Moffett and Laurie Rice are co-Principal Investigators.

Part of this grant proposal stipulates that media literacy and critical thinking will be embedded in the curriculum of two existing political science courses: Introduction to American Politics (as Political Science 112) and Introduction to International Relations (as Political Science 370). As a professor who has been working in the Department for twenty years I can attest that the Southern Illinois University Edwardsville Political Science Department certifies that these courses are appropriate venues for such training. Furthermore, I can authenticate that the investigators on this grant are well-positioned with valid and appropriate credentials to furnish this knowledge.
