Opinion: Big Tech needs to pull the plug on Russia's biggest propaganda campaign

By Ben Scott
 Yesterday at 4:03 p.m. EDT

Ben Scott is a former State Department official and the director at Reset, a project of Luminate, a global philanthropic organization that is part of the Omidyar Group.

There is a violent conspiracy spreading like wildfire across social media. It revolves around a single letter. And it has captured the imaginations of millions who are devoted to promoting it. Although its central ideas are preposterous, its followers support violence to make fantasy become reality.

I'm not talking about the QAnon conspiracy (though all of the above applies to it). I'm talking about "Z," the propaganda campaign amplified by the Kremlin in Eastern Europe to gin up support for Russian President Vladimir Putin's murderous war in Ukraine. The Z campaign started in the days after the invasion. It has now reached tens of millions of people across social media platforms. It is the rallying symbol of the Russian war machine and an effective weapon in the information war.

Strikingly, the QAnon conspiracy has been barred from promotion on YouTube, Facebook, TikTok and Twitter. But as of now, Z continues to grow.

Like QAnon, the Z campaign relies upon falsehoods to promote us-vs.-them antagonism. The Russian narrative claims that Ukraine — whose elected president, Volodymyr Zelensky, is Jewish — is ruled by Nazis. This grotesque mythology portrays NATO, the European Union and the United States as the great power backers of evildoers who kill innocents and threaten Russia. Like QAnon, whose messages purportedly come from an all-knowing Washington insider known only as "Q," Z embraces a cult-of-personality strongman as its leader. Z's outward similarity to the swastika is particularly insidious.

Z's origins as a viral conspiracy are murky. It began with the images of Russian military vehicles in Ukraine clearly marked with the letter "Z," apparently a military identification code to distinguish Russian vehicles from those operated by the Ukrainian army. The letter does not exist in the Cyrillic alphabet. But the Kremlin now claims that it stands for "victory" — because the phonetic rendering of the Russian "for victory" in the Latin alphabet starts with Z.

The propaganda value of the symbol quickly became evident. Russian state media produced slick videos featuring Z and began selling Z-themed merchandise. Schoolchildren have posed on Instagram with colored Z drawings. Dozens of Z hashtags racked up millions of views across social media. Even on Instagram and Twitter, which are now blocked in Russia, Kremlin-aligned accounts keep posting Z propaganda.

Like QAnon, Z has become a symbol of resentment and a messianic faith that its believers will triumph. But Z is far worse. Its central purpose is to justify a horrific war. It has become a serious information weapon pointed not only at Russian-speaking communities but also increasingly in many other languages.

Despite blocking Instagram and Twitter inside Russia, the Russian government's own accounts continue to post on both platforms in Russian — reaching people inside Russia that circumvent the block as well as the very sizable Russian-speaking communities in Eastern Europe. Although Big Tech is frequently unwilling to share meaningful data about the scope of malign content on their services, our research suggests widespread distribution of Z — including Z-themed hashtags on Instagram and TikTok alone. (A representative for Meta, the parent company of Instagram, declined to comment on the record. TikTok did not respond to a request for comment.)

Starting in 2017, the QAnon conspiracy also began to spread like wildfire on Big Tech social media platforms. Recommendation algorithms programmed to capture user attention actively promoted it precisely because it was sensationalist and incendiary. At its peak, 1 in 5 Americans were prepared to believe that a secret cabal of blood-drinking, Satan-worshiping pedophiles held power in the United States. The conspiracy fed into wild acts of violence, including the Jan. 6 attack on the Capitol.

Then the Big Tech companies reversed course. Google blocked QAnon apps from the Play Store for spreading “harmful information.” Facebook announced it would remove accounts related to “militarized social movements.” YouTube followed a few days later, pulling down videos with “conspiracy theories that have been used to justify real-world violence.” TikTok brought down QAnon for promoting disinformation. Twitter did the same — pulling 70,000 QAnon accounts. Mentions of QAnon on major digital media platforms dropped dramatically, slashing audiences by more than half within days.

Big Tech, in short, is responsible for both the making and the unmaking of QAnon.

Z violates all of the company policies made to address QAnon. And yet Z continues to spread on all of these platforms. The big difference is that Z is many times more dangerous than QAnon.

So why are we blocking Putin's banks and oil but not his digital weaponry? One answer could be that the Big Tech firms are overwhelmed by the demands of information warfare. This is partly because they failed to invest in adequate product safeguards in languages other than English — a terrible risk that is now costing us all dearly. They might simply not have built the technical systems necessary to stop the promotion of Z immediately. But this is no excuse for the lack of a clear policy. They have plenty of money to solve any problem they choose to solve.

It is bizarre to apply rules against violent conspiracies in the United States and then give the Kremlin a pass for something far worse. The moral lines in this conflict are crystal clear. The Big Tech companies must act.

Nina,

Thanks so much for the nice note. They are both great, and I'm sorry I haven't been more engaged this week. It's been an insane few days. Really excited to get to work more with you!

Best,
Jen

Hi Jen- happy Friday!

Just wanted to send a quick note and say that I think we have a stellar team assembled for the DGB work and I'm so looking forward to seeing what we can accomplish together. Andy has been incredibly helpful as the elder statesman and institutional repository on this work. It's also been a real pleasure to work with Sebastian- he is quick to respond and pitch in, incredibly thoughtful, and helpful in connecting me with the right people in the Department and answering lots of questions about the DGB and beyond.

Hope you have a great weekend-
Nina

Dear Rob,

On our call with OPA, OLA, Ricki, and Isa about the DGB rollout yesterday, we were asked to produce this one pager with TPs about the Board's purpose, authorities, and initial deliverables, as well as notional validators.

Jen and Sam have both reviewed this draft; once we have your feedback, we will provide the document to the those who were on the call, as per their request, and work with them on ideas for the timing and strategy for the rollout. We'll of course keep you apprised of those ideas.

Looking forward to your feedback-
Nina

Priority:	Normal
Type:	Note

Hi all,

Thank you for your patience as we continue to work on a framework for the analytic exchange with industry partners we have spoken about previously. While we iron out a few remaining wrinkles in the document, below is an update about DGB work in lieu of our weekly call.

- Thank you for your feedback on the Principles document last week; it is going up to U/S Silvers in the coming days with your valuable edits incorporated.
- We plan to hold our inaugural Board meeting this month (not an April Fools joke!), where the Board will discuss and approve the Principles document, as well as be briefed on the ongoing capabilities review and analytic exchange plans.
- We met with OPA and OLA colleagues to discuss the Board’s public rollout this morning and hope to have an update for you on more specifics soon.
- We look forward to our capabilities review meetings with CISA/NRMC, FEMA, S&T, and I&A next week.

As you continue to engage with stakeholders, read interesting reports, or encounter any areas where you and your team might need support from the DGB, please don’t hesitate to get in touch.

Have a great weekend,
Nina

Biography

Mr. Nathaniel Gleicher is the Head of Security Policy at Meta, where he leads our company-wide effort to counter emerging and persistent threats across our platforms, including influence operations, cyber-espionage, and cybersecurity risks. He is an engineer and lawyer, and has worked in security for more than fifteen years. He has taught computer science, built and secured computer networks, and prosecuted cyber crime at the U.S. Department of Justice, served as director for cybersecurity policy at the National Security Council (NSC) in the White House, and as head of cybersecurity strategy at Illumio. At the NSC he developed U.S. government policy on key technology and cybersecurity challenges, including encryption, cyber deterrence, internet governance, and network security.

Subject: Next Steps on Irregular Migration Case Study

Dear Colleagues,

Thank you for the high-level briefing on MDM in the irregular migration space yesterday morning. As a next step, we'd like to act collectively to identify a specific false or misleading narrative exploited by human traffickers or human smugglers to entice or encourage people to engage in irregular, illicit migration so we can develop a coordinated response plan.

(b)(5)

As I mentioned yesterday, I would also like the academic/think tank sector to brief the group on their research and conclusions about MDM and irregular migration. Below are five groups of researchers/analysts who have published on this issue; I would welcome your thoughts on any other academics or think tank types who have worked extensively on MDM for possible inclusion in the roundtable, which I'd like to hold within the next 1-2 weeks. The roundtable will then inform our response plan.

I've included a list of due outs below and will be identifying a convenient time for us all to meet again in the coming days. Please let me know if you have any questions. I think this case study will illuminate best practices for the Board and components and our future coordination together, and I'm looking forward to getting it off the ground.

Best,
Nina

Due outs:

- CBP + I&A: leverage available resources to identify the 2-3 false narratives you assess to present the highest risk of engendering or exacerbating irregular migration and present your analysis concerning each of these narratives;
- All: Review below list of academics/researchers and their publications (linked) in the MDM/migration space; suggest additions to Nina.

Nina and team,

Thank you so much. Looking good. I would like to see the framework for the analytic exchange and the capabilities review before calendaring the meeting, but will be ready to do so in short order once I review and am good with them.

A couple of notes in the meantime based on my quick review of the docs:

(b)(5)

Thank you so much for the fantastic work. It is exciting to launch here. I hope everyone had a great weekend.

Subject: First Disinfo Gov Board Meeting: Draft Agenda and Scheduling

Hi Rob,

We are hoping to get the first Disinformation Governance Board meeting on the calendar for the week of April 18. I've attached a draft agenda (which Jen has reviewed) as well as our Principles document (which has been socialized with Steering Group Members) for your feedback. The Board will formally adopt the Principles doc at the meeting.

There are two other documents referenced in the agenda that I will follow up with early next week: the framework for a PLCY-specific Analytic Exchange, and the Executive Summary of our freshly-completed Capabilities Review.

Once you give me the go ahead, I will work with Quann to find a time that works for our members and get the meeting on the calendar.

Let us know if you have questions or concerns.

Best,
N

Hi again both,

Jen, Sam and I just synced on this document and made a few changes based on your feedback; we also inserted some language from the Charter. It's below. This isn't going to be publicly released, but is for Ricki/OPA use as they develop the plan for engagement with media.

We welcome your feedback so we can send this up the chain.

Thanks!

Nina – thanks. I believe we have a 1:1 today and we can discuss.

And I am also sorry you are chagrined – we are so glad that the work is progressing so substantively. We oftentimes have some delays in rollouts as the communications SMEs evolve their thinking on timing and substance and then have to loop back with each other. Glad to share more on that internal dynamic when we speak.

This time looks free on everyone's calendars but let me know if it doesn't work- thanks!

Dear Colleagues,

Sam and I met with Ricki last week and at her direction drafted this short document outlining the Disinformation Governance Board's efforts; we hope it can inform planning for the announcement.  docx icon DGB Brief 040522.docx

On the week of April 25, we plan to hold both our first Board Meeting and a roundtable with researchers on irregular migration and MDM. As such, we would like to make the public announcement of the Board (and related Congressional/industry/civil society notifications) prior to those events.

Is it possible to meet tomorrow or Monday to discuss?

Thanks very much and hope you are all able to enjoy a bit of the beautiful weather.

Best
Nina

Subject: DGB Board Packet for Review

Dear Rob,

Great to see you at the happy hour last night!

As promised, here is the completed Board Packet for your review. Once you give the go ahead I am happy to work with Quann to get the Board meeting on the calendar for the 25th or 26th, before you depart for the Bay Area.
