2020-HQFO-00715	S, Susan	she would like us to answers her 6 questions regarding the explosive, 2,4-Dinitrophenol: 1. Per Homeland Security, what is the chemical 2,4 Dinitrophenol or DNP for short, used for today? In the U.S., DNP is classified as a UN Class 1.1D explosive. It is my belief that because DNP is too toxic, the U.S. stopped using it in explosives or as an explosive, but it still belongs in the class of UN classified explosive. However, DNP is also an acutely toxic poison. It is in the same explosive's category as TNT. In the early 20th Century, DNP was used in munitions and dozens of factory workers died as a result of DNP's toxicity; it was also noticed these workers lost weight. 2. Can Homeland Security confirm that in the 1970's, DNP was banned for use in bombs and munitions because it was too toxic? DNP used to be used in pesticides in the U.S. However, the U.S. cancelled DNP for pesticide use in the late 1980's and early 1990's. Therefore, it is not correct this day and age to say DNP is a pesticide or in any ingredient in pesticide. 3. If DNP is no longer used as an explosive, and DNP is no longer used in pesticides, can Homeland Security confirm where DNP is used ? ie, is DNP used in any other industrial applications in the U.S. such as a wood preservative and in photograph development and dyes? 4. Has Homeland Security ever had any chemical terrorism incidences/arrests where someone was using or planning to use DNP in a chemical terrorism event or similar event that would cause harm? 5. Is it legal to import small quantities of DNP, such as 100g, into the U.S. from websites such as alibaba.com without an explosives license? Does Homeland Security agency oversee this type of activity? 6. Is it legal to sell small quantities of DNP, such as 100g, from websites without an explosives license? Does Homeland Security agency oversee this?	3/11/2020

2020-HQFO-00746	Cover, William	Newspaper articles and non classified information to support or disprove the hypothesis written based upon what you have read about the origin of COVID19. The early newspaper and scientific reports from China (that are no longer available on the internet) made it very clear Patient Zero was a stroke victim that contracted pneumonia in the hospital and expired either on Dec 1 or Dec 8. Of the 50-60 cases linked to the Chinese Market, 14 of the victims were described as "Medical Technologists". I have not found the name or location of the hospital caring for patient zero. Patient Zero lived three bus stops from the market and the Wuhan Virology Institute is with walking distance to the meat/seafood market. Wuhan Virology Institute has a collection of coronavirus strains. The Medical Technologists must have worked near the market and frequently visited the market. The market was closed on December 30th after 250 surface samples tested positive that were taken from locations covering the whole market. Obviously, the early reports of the virus originating from an animal to person transfer at the market were incorrect based upon the data from the swabs. It is doubtful the animals used the cash register or the tables/chairs etc. It is difficult to believe the "spontaneous generation theory" from snakes eating rats at the virology institute and exotic animals being used for dinners as the source since Patient 0 died about 14 days before the outbreak. Counting the flu A strain and SARS, this is the third virus created at this market located near a research facility. Why are similar markets around the world inept at creating pathogens? It seems reasonable to spend resources to find out: 1) if Patient 0 infected the medical personnel that also frequented the market; 2) if a disgruntled employee with frustration toward fellow workers or Communism released the virus; or 3) the release was accidental similar to what we observed many years ago with Russian anthrax. The data support a genetic recombination event in Patient Zero accidentally or intentionally.	3/26/2020

2020-HQFO-01060	de la Serna, Justin	data mining and collection records made about myself (Justin de la Serna) in the last 12 months that are present or were provided by the following components of the DHS: Office of Intelligence and Analysis National Protection and Programs Directorate Privacy Office United States Coast Guard Office of the Inspector General Cybersecurity and Infrastructure Security Agency The aforementioned existence of records include: AFI records, SAR records (or similar reports), and any other pertinent records relating to myself in the above components of the DHS. The specifics of which are difficult to glean as there is a broad spectrum of acronyms and type of records, but I am attempting to provide some clarification. I am interested in the misuse in the act of creation of such records and as a means of monitoring beyond the scope of what the DHS is necessarily intended to do. Primarily potentially malicious use of the DHS systems to monitor an individual for incorrect purposes. ...focus on the Coast Guard and SAR entries in the date range of 9/1/19 to 12/30/2019 (or similar provided reports) on my exiting of a company that has done work with the Coast Guard. There were sentiments of fear and confusion when I left, however, there were seldom malicious sentiments towards the government and its organization... If the above primary search query returns no information, please extend the date period from 9/1/2019 to 4/1/2020. If the secondary search query does not provide response perhaps it is worth replacing the "Coast Guard" as a search term with each of the above listed components. Beginning with the first date range (9/1/19 to 12/30/2019 ) then proceeding to the second date range (9/1/19 to 4/1/2020).	5/6/2020
