30. April 14, Help Net Security – (International) Attackers use deceptive tactics to dominate corporate networks. Symantec released research revealing that spear-phishing attacks on corporations increased by 8 percent in 2014, and that email and social media had remained significant attack vectors. Researchers also found that software companies took an average of 59 days to release patches and that 24 zero-day vulnerabilities were discovered in 2014, among other findings.

Source: <http://www.net-security.org/secworld.php?id=18208>

31. April 13, Help Net Security – (International) Attackers can easily crack Belkin routers' WPS PINs. A security researcher discovered that 80 percent of Belkin routers tested generated Wi-Fi Protected Setup (WPS) PINs based on the device's own MAC addresses and serial numbers, leaving it vulnerable to discovery by attackers using unencrypted request/response packets via Wi-Fi probes.

Source: <http://www.net-security.org/secworld.php?id=18204>

32. April 13, Securityweek – (International) Attacks against SCADA systems doubled in 2014: Dell. Dell revealed in its annual threat report that attacks against supervisory control and data acquisition systems (SCADA) doubled in 2014, including 51,258 attacks in the U.S., and that the attacks tended to be political in nature and targeted operational capabilities within power plants, factories, and refineries primarily in Finland, the U.K., and the U.S. The report found that 25 percent of the attacks witnessed exploited buffer overflow vulnerabilities followed by improper input validation and information exposure.
