That's fine.

Also, as long as I have your attention, below is a quote from a speech that Obama gave in February 2008 at Tulane in which he talked about what he would do with FEMA if elected.

Certainly, Administrator Fugate fits the description of who he wanted, although he doesn't have a fixed term or report directly to the president. What I wondered about was the last line, about the National Response Pla., My understanding is that a National Response Plan already existed, but I didn't know whether this refers to something new and different that has been created since you guys took over.

Thanks,
Jonathan

Obama at Tulane

"If catastrophe comes, the American people must be able to call on a competent government. When I am President, the days of dysfunction and cronyism in Washington will be over. The director of FEMA will report to me. He or she will have the highest qualifications in emergency management. And I won't just tell you that I'll insulate that office from politics - I'll guarantee it, by giving my FEMA director a fixed term like the director of the Federal Reserve. I don't want FEMA to be thinking for one minute about the politics of a crisis. I want FEMA to do its job, which is protecting the American people - not protecting a President's politics. And as soon as we take office, my FEMA director will work with emergency management officials in all fifty states to create a National Response Plan. Because we need to know - before disaster comes - who will be in charge; and how the federal, state and local governments will work together to respond."

Do you want to do the interview before the editorial board or afterwards? I think it would be better afterwards, but you know his schedule.

I think all the questions will be about hurricane preps and transforming the agency. I don't think there will be any surprises.

Subject: Atlantic Story--Revisited
Hi Clark,

When I saw (b)(6) a couple weeks ago, I mentioned that I wasn't sure if the Atlantic wanted to try again for a story on Mr. Fugate. (This story was in the works before you officially came on, but the Vitter hold mucked up the timing and we missed their last deadline, etc.)

Anyway, I talked to the editor today, and they do indeed want to try again. They'd like the piece for their next issue. The idea remains the same--a profile to introduce Craig to the reader, explain his background, talk a bit about the future of FEMA. I think it's a good opportunity to do something before some kind of actual emergency forces the issue.

But to make it work, I'd need to get time with Craig. I've met him before through my book, so I am hopeful he will be OK with the idea. But let me know what you think. The piece is due June 4.

If possible, I would much prefer to DO something with Craig... It can be something tedious (ordering office furniture! getting a security photo taken! I don't know.) It doesn't need to be grand. But since most people have not heard much about Craig and don't know much about FEMA, I think it's essential to get a little scene so that it is a bit more engaging.

Personally (if I can blow your mind for a second), I'd like to go paddling with him in the Potomac. I'm actually not entirely joking here... He loves to kayak, as you may know. It could be a sort of Washington debut for him, but less boring. For both of us. Just an idea. We could go right in Georgetown and he could be back before anyone noticed he was having fun.

Let me know what you guys think. Thanks.

Hi Clark,

A few questions. Just some basic digits that I could use help with before my Thursday deadline. Let me know if you want to discuss. Thanks.

--How many employees does FEMA currently have?

--In the DC area, about how many different buildings do FEMA employees work in?

--From the FEMA site, it looks like there have been about 29 federal disaster declarations since Pres. Obama took office. Do you know roughly how many requests have you received for disaster declarations?

--Also, could you please make sure I am on your press-release list?

Thank you.

Hi Clark,

When I saw (b)(6) a couple weeks ago, I mentioned that I wasn't sure if the Atlantic wanted to try again for a story on Mr. Fugate. (This story was in the works before you officially came on, but the Vitter hold mucked up the timing and we missed their last deadline, etc.)

Anyway, I talked to the editor today, and they do indeed want to try again. They'd like the piece for their next issue. The idea remains the same--a profile to introduce Craig to the reader, explain his background, talk a bit about the future of FEMA. I think it's a good opportunity to do something before some kind of actual emergency forces the issue.

But to make it work, I'd need to get time with Craig. I've met him before through my book, so I am hopeful he will be OK with the idea. But let me know what you think. The piece is due June 4.

If possible, I would much prefer to DO something with Craig... It can be something tedious (ordering office furniture! getting a security photo taken! I don't know.) It doesn't need to be grand. But since most people have not heard much about Craig and don't know much about FEMA, I think it's essential to get a little scene so that it is a bit more engaging.

Personally (if I can blow your mind for a second), I'd like to go paddling with him in the Potomac. I'm actually not entirely joking here... He loves to kayak, as you may know. It could be a sort of Washington debut for him, but less boring. For both of us. Just an idea. We could go right in Georgetown and he could be back before anyone noticed he was having fun.

Let me know what you guys think. Thanks.

[Cindy Wirz] 01/29/2009 5:39 PM (GMT -5:00): Request for interview on the declaration, what it means and what is direct federal assistance. Cindy Wirz provided email background, see below. Bob Alvey, IMAT EAO, and Tommy Jackson, ADEM PIO, by phone, discussed the following issues: while FEMA propositioned some generators and a couple of people in the area before the storm, we do not have teams in the field and will not do so until 1) responders are done checking on people and 2) we are advised through the state that it is safe to deploy assessment teams to the affected area.

EMAIL: For your background information about the Emergency Declaration for Arkansas, FEMA-3301-EM:

- FEMA does have staff on the ground in Arkansas.
- The State of Arkansas is sharing space with FEMA in the State Emergency Operations Center.
- At this time there is no FEMA assistance available to individuals. Residents who have immediate needs should contact their local volunteer agencies.

Specifically, FEMA is authorized to provide emergency protective measures (Category B), limited to direct Federal assistance, under the Public Assistance program at 75% funding. The State of Arkansas must provide a 25% match. I have included information on direct Federal assistance under my signature.

Bob Alvey, External Affairs Officer for the Incident Management Assistance Team (IMAT), will be contacting you shortly to discuss any further questions you may have and to provide you with an interview opportunity.

Below is what I have for your contact information, please let me know if I can be of further assistance:

20 Measures

Direct Federal Assistance

When the impact of a disaster is so severe that neither the State nor local government can adequately respond, either by direct performance or by contract, the State may request that certain emergency work be performed directly by a Federal agency. See 44 CFR §206.208 for a discussion of types of Direct Federal Assistance. Under the provisions of the regulations, FEMA, through "Mission Assignments," may use appropriate Federal agencies to perform work or to contract for it to be performed.

The work to be performed must be eligible under the Stafford Act and Federal regulations and is limited to:

- debris removal;
- o The duration of mission assignments for debris removal will be limited to 60 days from the declaration date. The Federal Coordinating Officer may approve extensions for up to an additional 60 days, if a State or local government demonstrates a continued lack of capability to assume oversight of the debris removal mission. Further extensions will require approval by the Assistant Administrator of the Disaster Assistance Directorate.
- emergency protective measures;
- emergency communications; and,
- emergency public transportation.

The assistance is subject to the cost-sharing provisions applicable to the disaster. The State must reimburse FEMA for the appropriate non-Federal share of the cost of the work, including any administrative costs of the performing Federal agency.

A request for direct Federal assistance must be submitted by the State to the DRM either on its own behalf or on behalf of an applicant. The request must include the items listed below.

- A written agreement that the State will:
 - o provide, without cost to the United States, all lands, easements, and rights-of-way necessary to complete the approved work;
 - o hold and save the United States free from damages due to the requested work and indemnify the Federal government against any claims arising from such work;
 - o provide reimbursement to FEMA for the non-Federal share of the cost of the work; and,
 - o assist the performing Federal department or agency in all support and local jurisdictional matters.
- A statement explaining why the State and local governments are unable to perform or contract for the work.
- If the State is legally unable to agree to the first two items listed under the first bullet above, an agreement from the applicant that it will be responsible for the items. The provision of lands, easements, or rights-of-way without cost to the United States means that any leasing or purchase costs will be borne by non-Federal interests. The costs of preparation for the assistance operations and costs of restoration to pre-operation conditions will be eligible for Federal assistance.

FEMA has a seasoned team of emergency managers spread across ten regions and include at least two highly trained Federal Coordinating Officers per region, all led by Acting Administrator Nancy Ward who was hand-selected based on her experience. FEMA has continued to build and improve the organization over the years and achieved considerable results during the disaster response and recovery operations of 2008.

Agency Accomplishments:

In 2008, FEMA responded to 90 declared disasters and assisted 36 states.
 Responded to record floods in the Midwest affecting a six-state area.
 Responded to the fourth busiest hurricane season since 1944. It was the year on record in which a major hurricane occurred in every month from July to November in the North Atlantic.

QUESTOIN: Regarding: How strongly did federal government urge evacuations of Fargo? Was there pressure to force locals to do mass evacuation?

RESPONSE: FCO Mike Hall responded:

-At news conference in Fargo, Governor and National Guard Gen. urged Fargo Mayor to initiate mandatory evacuations. Ward supported Governor's position.

-Mayor strongly objected.

-FEMA and Governor initiated plan B-helicopters, commodities, etc.; They recognized final decision was City of Fargo's.

-No additional arm-trusting or pressure by FEMA.

-Learning from Katrina, FEMA put precautionary measures in place.

-Mayor's decision was not arbitrary; well supported.

-Hall said consecutive failure is not an option.

-Lessons learned from Katrina

-Plan B is an investment not a cost

-Healthy debate encouraged on "right" course of action

-Decision rests with local officials.

FOLLOW -UP RESPONSE TO QUERY (APRIL 1, 2009)

Federal Coordinating Officer Mike Hall's response to AP Reporter Fred Frommer on issue of mass evacuation in Fargo, ND:

* I should have used a better word than "news conference" when I spoke to you about the location where FEMA, the Governor, the Mayor of Fargo and other leaders discussed the issue of mass evacuations.

* The open meeting was in the same room where reporters attended news conferences. I inadvertently mixed the two.

* I am sorry if it caused any confusion.

* Again, that meeting was not behind closed doors and there was no heavy-handed or arm-twisting from Nancy Ward to the Mayor.

* As I stated to you earlier in our interview and as the Acting FEMA Administrator is quoted in today's New York Times, the final decision was the city's to make. FEMA moved on to prepare plan B to support city leaders should the situation escalate.

* The Administrator only responded to a question on her position on mandatory evacuations.

- * Her response was she supported the Governor's recommendation.
- * FEMA never took an aggressive approach because we know all disasters are local.

 RE: FEMA's disaster planning for special needs populations

Original Email: I caught a hearing with Administrator Craig Fugate earlier this summer, where he said FEMA would come up with some plans that took a bottom-up look at disaster planning for special needs populations such as elderly, children and disabled, etc. I have heard these plans are to be finalized (or perhaps released for public comment) in November.

Might there be someone I could talk to at FEMA who could tell me a bit about how these plans are going? What sort of ideas are going into them? Mr. Fugate had mentioned that these populations must be more than an after-thought and require plans to address their specific needs. How is FEMA approaching those challenges?

Q and A's:

Talking Points: Provided the following TP's

Local and State governments share the responsibility for protecting their citizens from disasters, and for helping them to recover when a disaster strikes. In some cases, a disaster is beyond the capabilities of the State and local government to respond.

- The Stafford Act requires, "All requests for a declaration by the President that a major disaster exists shall be made by the Governor of the affected State."

- The Governor's request is made through the regional FEMA office.

- FEMA disaster assistance falls into three general categories:

- Individual Assistance — aid to individuals and households;

- Public Assistance — aid to public (and certain private non-profit) entities for certain emergency services and the repair or replacement of disaster-damaged public facilities;

- Hazard Mitigation Assistance — funding for measures designed to reduce future losses to public and private property.

Recommendation: Provided link to the declaration process page and talking points.

We'd like to talk about how FEMA is responding to some of the major emergencies -- wildfires, hurricanes, flooding etc... -- as well as how Administrator Fugate may want to adjust or fine tune FEMA's approach or operations etc, and (if applicable) what kind of resources FEMA may want that it doesn't currently have to address emergencies on a regional or national scale.

This is a 25-minute interview in which Mr. Fugate would talk with a C-SPAN host and two reporters. There are no viewer calls. It's a TAPED interview and would air twice on Sunday, at 10a.m. and 6p.m. ET.

Obama pushes hurricane preps

By: Mike Allen
May 28, 2009 03:59 PM EST

President Barack Obama plans to show that hurricane preparedness is a priority for his administration by traveling to the Federal Emergency Management Agency on Friday, officials told POLITICO.

It's the president's first trip to FEMA. More typically, the briefing has been given at the White House. The trip is a way to get more of a feel for the federal machinery and to demonstrate his personal commitment to the issue.

The president will receive a detailed briefing on national preparedness for the upcoming hurricane season, including hearing from senior administration leadership about what steps have been taken to prepare for the season.

Obama will have a chance to ask questions about those efforts and will meet briefly with his press pool at the end. FEMA is between L'Enfant Plaza and Federal Center Southwest.

The briefers will include FEMA Administrator Craig Fugate, Homeland Security Secretary Janet Napolitano and other senior administration officials.

The hurricane season begins next Monday. The administration says that to prepare for this summer's storms, officials have been working closely with state partners to increase preparedness and raise awareness in hurricane-prone areas.

 In a presidential proclamation establishing National Hurricane Preparedness Week, Obama said: "The threat hurricanes pose to lives and property cannot be eliminated, but preparedness can reduce the dangers these storms pose for our families and communities."

"Awareness and preparation are critical to surviving and recovering from hurricanes," he said. "During National Hurricane Preparedness Week, I call on all Americans — including private citizens and those working in government, business and the nonprofit sector — to plan ahead and help secure the safety and property of those who face advancing storms."

Obama nominated Fugate, formerly Florida's head of emergency management, to lead FEMA. The administrator was confirmed by the Senate and sworn in earlier this month.

We gave them extensive numbers on background and a brief statement: FEMA has made great strides over the last few years in regards to its preparations for and response to disasters, including strengthening our partnerships with the state and local leaders we support. Under the leadership of the new administration, Secretary Napolitano, and Administrator Craig Fugate, these efforts to build a stronger response team have increased.

Sean,
As threatened, here is my interview request for the Secretary for my book.

I'm looking to talk to her for about 15-20 minutes about being a woman in politics. What advantages or disadvantages she's encountered over the years; what advice she gives to young women running for office; her response to the Rendells of the world. I'm especially interested in good anecdotes -- and in just hearing her riff.

The book, as I've mentioned, is being published by Crown (a division of Random House) and is coming out in 2010. I've already talked to lots of elected officials but she'd be an especially great voice; my goal is to include as many younger, newer women as humanly possible.

What else can I tell you to help make my case?

I received a call today from Marian Burros who contributes to New York Times and Politico. She is working on a series about prominent people in Washington D.C. who cook. She heard from someone, didn't say who, that S1 likes to cook. What she is hoping to do is to have S1 cook and Marian would interview her while S1 cooks.

Marian does not have a deadline or a timeline – at some point this summer. She is running a story on John Podesta (same topic) on Friday, July 10 so we may want to see how it is before moving forward.

Hi Amy,

We just spoke on the phone about John King's request to interview Secretary Napolitano that I first made contact with Dag about two months ago (see email below). He assured me that he was the contact for transition press and that we would be one of the first on the list for after she was confirmed.

John is planning on doing his new Sunday show "State of the Union" from Arizona on February 15th and would love to pretape a sitdown with her either at a location on the border or here in DC and talk to her about what the Department of Homeland Security is doing to secure the border and confront new threats to the U.S. under President Obama.

I hope that we do get credit for our early interest in booking Secretary Napolitano since we did go through the correct presidential transition contact and had several talks with him in December and January about booking Secretary Napolitano for our show that weekend.

Do you think she will be doing interviews that week? Just want to give John guidance about how likely this is.

Thanks so much,
Tasha

Hi Sean!

CNN's Wolf Blitzer would like to interview Secretary Janet Napolitano once she decides to start doing interviews. As you may know, Wolf is the anchor of The Situation Room which airs Monday thru Friday, from 4-7p ET. Wolf would gladly come to the Department of Homeland Security for a 10-12 minute taped, face-to-face interview, which would air throughout the 3 hours of the show and then again on the Saturday edition of The Situation Room, which airs from 6-7p ET.

During the 2008 election season, Wolf and then-Governor Napolitano had a terrific working relationship, which included several interviews, thus Sec. Napolitano is familiar with Wolf and his solid & fair interview style.

Thank you for your kind consideration of our request.

Hi Matt,

Good speaking with you today about the story I'm working on about the status of airport security screening in the US - how far we've come since 9/11 and what changes are being made to improve the screening process for passengers. For the piece, I'm interested in learning what Napolitano's priorities are for this year. As per your request, here are some of my initial questions.

What efforts are being made by DHS to review airport security?

What are Napolitano's priorities for airport security including passenger screening?

- what are some of the biggest issues that need fixing?
- what measures have been proving effective?
- which are not working?

Three years after an airline bomb plot was rolled up in Britain, American airports are still on high or orange alert. Why is that and how much is that costing in additional security measures beyond yellow alert?

Is there a timeline for when the new advanced technology x-ray machines will allow passengers to leave their Cokes and Gatorade bottles in their carry-on bags during screening?

When will passengers be able to keep their shoes on?

What is the budget for airport security and how will it be allocated?

Why don't we have a new TSA leader yet or a customs and border protection commissioner?

Thanks and best,
Michelle Higgins

Subject: Airport security story

Hi Matt,

Good speaking with you today about the story I'm working on about the status of airport security screening in the US - how far we've come since 9/11 and what changes are being made to improve the screening process for passengers. For the piece, I'm interested in learning what Napolitano's priorities are for this year. As per your request, here are some of my initial questions.

What efforts are being made by DHS to review airport security?

What are Napolitano's priorities for airport security including passenger screening?

- what are some of the biggest issues that need fixing?
- what measures have been proving effective?
- which are not working?

Three years after an airline bomb plot was rolled up in Britain, American airports are still on high or orange alert. Why is that and how much is that costing in additional security measures beyond yellow alert?

Is there a timeline for when the new advanced technology x-ray machines will allow passengers to leave their Cokes and Gatorade bottles in their carry-on bags during screening?

When will passengers be able to keep their shoes on?

What is the budget for airport security and how will it be allocated?

Why don't we have a new TSA leader yet or a customs and border protection commissioner?

Thanks and best,
Michelle Higgins

Hi Matt.

I'm back in the office and have another couple of days to work on the story. Is Secretary Napolitano available to expand on her priorities for airport security and any proposed changes she has made to bolster the Department's efficiency and security efforts like the assessment of the current threat level system?

Hi Michelle –

Please see answers to your questions below. You may attribute them to me, Matt Chandler, spokesperson, U.S Department of Homeland Security.

What are Napolitano's priorities for airport security including passenger screening?

America's transportation sectors have never been more secure. In response to recommendations by the 9/11 Commission, TSA now screens 100 percent of checked and carry-on baggage with high-tech systems and 100 percent of cargo on 95 percent of flights originating in the United States. DHS pre-screens 100 percent of passengers arriving in, departing from and traveling within the United States before they even board the plane. Air, surface and maritime sector security have been greatly enhanced since 9/11.

What are some of the biggest issues that need fixing?

TSA's focus is to stay ahead of evolving threats to keep the traveling public safe. TSA is continually strives to maintain the balance between maintaining a high level of security while improving the passenger experience.

What measures have been proving effective?

Every day, TSA works around the clock to keep the traveling public safe, screening over 2 million passengers at more than 450 airports nationwide. TSA has made significant advancements in technology to stay ahead of evolving threats, while our layers of security and increased sharing of intelligence across agencies have enhanced security. TSA has implemented several major programs to improve security and customer experience. Over the last year, all of TSA's officers completed training to strengthen security by improving passenger engagement. TSA also launched the "Why?" Campaign and partnered with the Ad Council to educate passengers about the "whys" behind security, including the 3-1-1 liquids requirement and the Secure Flight program. The TSA/Ad Council's campaign has reached over 70 million people. Additionally, TSA has improved passenger education at airports, including new signage and videos at checkpoints. TSA also engages the traveling public through social and new media such as the TSA blog, Twitter, TSA's Web site, and online videos.

Which are not working?

There are programs in various stages of implementation but TSA's scorecard of progress shows all activities are working to keep the traveling public safe.

Three years after an airline bomb plot was rolled up in Britain, American airports are still on high or orange alert. Why is that and how much is that costing in additional security measures beyond yellow alert?

TSA has a risk-based, layered approach, which includes the flexibility to allocate resources based on threat assessments.

Is there a timeline for when the new advanced technology x-ray machines will allow passengers to leave their Cokes and Gatorade bottles in their carry-on bags during screening?
TSA can best answer this

When will passengers be able to keep their shoes on?
TSA can best answer this

What is the budget for airport security and how will it be allocated?
TSA can best answer this

Thanks, and let me know if you need anything further.

Matt

Hello Matthew, Kathleen,

I'm a producer for The Conversation with Ross Reynolds on KUOW Puget Sound Public Radio, Seattle's NPR affiliate. We're interested in speaking with DHS Secretary Napolitano while she is in Seattle. We are a live show on the air from 12:00 – 1:00 pm PST. We're flexible as to timing. A 5-10 minute live interview at the top of the show would be ideal. We could also pretape before the show. As residents of a border state, our listeners would be interested to hear from the Secretary.

I'm at (b)(6) or on email.

reforms to American policy on detention for immigrants, and would like to speak either to Secretary of Homeland Security Janet Napolitano, or Dora Schriro, who is scheduled to become the director of the new Office of Detention Policy and Planning.

We will be discussing the topic of immigration reform on Wednesday morning's show (at 9:00 am EST) and would love to have either Ms. Napolitano or Ms. Schriro join us to explain the changes they foresee. However I understand they both have busy schedules, so we'd be open to speaking to them at any other time in the next few weeks. We can accommodate our guests in our 9:00 am EST live program, or tape this interview any day of the week between 12:00 noon EST and 3:00 pm EST.

I envision that this would be approximately a 15 minute conversation.

Please let me know what the possibilities are.

Hello Ms. Kuban,

I'm a producer at Channel One News, a daily, educational news program that airs in over 8,000 high schools nationwide. Channel One is produced out of CBS News Productions.

I'm currently working on a series about the U.S.-Mexican border and the fight against narco-related violence. This story would be an in-depth series profiling border issues. Because our program's target audience is comprised of teenagers, we tend to produce more in-depth, educational pieces that provide historical and political context.

I would like to request an on-camera interview with Secretary Napolitano to get her perspective on this matter. The interview would be with our reporter Steven Fabian.
http://www.channelone.com/about/steven_fabian/ The series is scheduled to air in early October. We are very flexible on date/time to schedule between now and then.

Having Sec. Napolitano's expertise in the story would not only provide important information on border issues but also teach our audience about the role of the Secretary of Homeland Security. I think it's important for our teenage viewers to learn the names and faces of the officials that work on the issues we cover.

Your consideration of this request is greatly appreciated. Please contact me by phone or email at anytime with questions about our show or the story. You can read more about Channel One News and also view some of our past stories on our website: <http://www.channelone.com/about/>

I look forward to hearing from your office soon.

Thank you,
-Toni DeAztlan

Hi Sara -

The Secretary was great on NBC and MSNBC this am. Is there any way she can give us an afternoon update LIVE on MSNBC?

Tom Costello is doing our spot for NIGHTLY NEWS and would like an interview for his spot for Brian Williams' broadcast.

Its a two-fer!

Let us know. Norah and Tom

Good Morning Sara,

Would Secretary Napolitano consider an interview with Ed Schultz on MSNBC tonight? The interview would be regarding the administration's push for immigration reform. We've just debuted "The Ed Show" this week and so far, it's been a resounding success. (including great interviews with Secretaries Lahood and Duncan)

This interview would be live sometime between 6pm-6:30pm tonight. It would also reair when the show replays at 8pm (in place of Countdown with Keith Olbermann) as well as several other times through the night.

Thank you for your time and consideration. Please let me know if you have any questions.

Sincerely,

Importance: High

Hi all,

Any chance that Sec. Napolitano might be able to do a LIVE interview with Dr. Nancy Snyderman tomorrow, Thursday, July 30, during the 12:30 p.m. to 1:00 p.m. ET half hour? We'd like to talk health care reform, swine flu, and obesity. The interview should last for about five to seven minutes, one-on-one. Dr. Nancy anchors from our studios in New York City. We could accommodate Sec. Napolitano from our NBC DC Bureau and have her join Dr. Nancy via satellite.

Thanks all!

Cheers,
Sheara

Hi Sara,

Any chance that Sec. Napolitano might be able to join us on MSNBC tomorrow, Monday, May 4, anytime during the 9:00 a.m. to 1:00 p.m. ET hours? The interview would last for about three to five minutes and we could do this anytime during this time frame that works best for her. Of course, we want to talk about the H1N1 virus.

Thanks Sara!

The House made very deep cuts from the Homeland Security administrative budget in the course of debate this week. There were two key votes, the King amendment and then motion to recommit, and when taken with prior cuts made by committee, you come out almost one third below request. I was thinking of looking at this: here we have Congress cutting management budget for an agency oft criticized for lax management.

Would like to someone knowledgeable about what this would mean if held up? Do you think there is any chance the secretary would be willing to address this in short interview Monday?

Sara, Sean and Amy,

NPR is still very interested in securing an interview with Secretary Napolitano. As you already know, we'd like to talk to her about how DHS is responding to the swine flu. I'm following up on behalf of Morning Edition. Our audience is far larger than the morning programs on television and she'd be heard across time zones, multiple times.

We'd like to be able to talk to her LIVE in our show tomorrow morning, either at 6:10am EDT or 6:40am EDT. It would be a straight forward interview done over the phone.

Can you let me know if this is possible or suggest other times if what we're offering doesn't work for her?

Many thanks,

Reena Advani

Hi, Sara, Sean and Amy--

This is to refresh our long standing interview request to have Secretary Napolitano on NPR. As I mentioned on the phone, it's hard to understand why she was on every television network show over the weekend, and still hasn't been on NPR, even though we have a bigger audience now than any of those shows.

I understand that this may have been a White House decision, so I'm copying Dag Vega and Sam Wilson on this email.

Can you let me know when the Secretary is available? As I've said before, we can make a host available almost anytime, today. And if not today, tomorrow. Certainly, this is more convenient than doing television!

Thanks, Sara, for letting me know that Secretary Napolitano's schedule may be too packed for an interview for our show tonight. We will make alternative plans for tonight's show, but if anything changes and she becomes available today, we will do our best to make it work!

Otherwise, if she should become available over the weekend, someone always answers our newscast number, 24/7, and that number is 202-513-2100, and who ever answers the phone can get your staff connected to the appropriate person for the weekend shows, or for Monday's Morning Edition staff.

Just checking in again -

I know you said it might take some time before you could respond to our Napolitano request.

Any sense of whether this could happen over the next few days?

Morning Edition, All Things Considered, and our weekend programs are all eager to speak with the Secretary.

When you have a moment, let us know what the possibilities are, and we will follow up to arrange it.

Please do us a favor and hit "reply to all" - that will keep each show in the loop.

Yes, 11:55am works also. How much time can she give us? Do you know where the Secretary will be?

Michele Norris may want to ask about other border issues, such as immigration and drugs, depending on how much time she has.

Secretary Napolitano's schedule shifted slightly can you do the interview at 11:55 a.m.? Also, I know we had discussed H1N1 flu - anything else?

Thank you!

Hi, Sara--

Michele Norris will be the host to interview Secretary Napolitano. She may even be able to come to the Secretary's office or some other place in Washington DC at 11:40am on Thursday.

If the Secretary will not be Washington DC, Ms. Norris can do it by phone at that time or 12:30pm Eastern, but we would like to be able to send someone to record the Secretary as she talks with Michele. We have people who do this all over the country do this for us, so if you let me know where she will be, I can make the arrangements. We would like the Secretary to sound as good as possible on our air.

If you ever need to talk to me in a hurry, my Blackberry number is (b)(6)

Thanks!

Sara,

Apologies - I'm writing to revise the confirmation below -

All Things Considered is going to do the interview with Secretary Napolitano since the taping time works better for their program Thursday afternoon. In fact, 12:30 pm may work better for them.

Carol Klinger will follow up with you to coordinate details.

Thanks very much,

Indeed. We were just negotiating timing of the taping and have decided this should go to ATC.

I will revise note to Sara and copy you.

FYI on Sebellius - we're still pursuing that one, as we'd had a prior request (pre-swine flu) on health care reform.

I'm contacting you from National Public Radio's Tell Me More with Michel Martin. We are following possible reforms to American policy on detention for immigrants, and would like to speak either to Secretary of Homeland Security Janet Napolitano, or Dora Schriro, who is scheduled to become the director of the new Office of Detention Policy and Planning.

We will be discussing the topic of immigration reform on Wednesday morning's show (at 9:00 am EST) and would love to have either Ms. Napolitano or Ms. Schriro join us to explain the changes they foresee. However I understand they both have busy schedules, so we'd be open to speaking to them at any other time in the next few weeks. We can accommodate our guests in our 9:00 am EST live program, or tape this interview any day of the week between 12:00 noon EST and 3:00 pm EST.

I envision that this would be approximately a 15 minute conversation.

Please let me know what the possibilities are.

DHS CONDUCTS CONTINUITY OF OPERATIONS EXERCISE

WASHINGTON— The Department of Homeland Security (DHS) conducted an exercise to test the readiness and capabilities of federal departments and agencies—coordinating with the White House—to execute their Continuity of Operations (COOP) plans today. The exercise, known as Eagle Horizon, is a mandatory annual exercise for all executive branch departments and agencies coordinated by DHS through the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA) and its National Continuity Programs (NCP) Directorate.

“Today’s exercise was critical to testing our continuity of operations procedures and ensuring coordination across the federal government in the event of a major emergency,” said DHS

Secretary Janet Napolitano. "A carefully designed and well-practiced national continuity plan significantly enhances our ability to react swiftly and effectively to any incident we may face."

In a national emergency, federal departments and agencies may be required to relocate to alternate sites. Eagle Horizon simulates such an event—and triggers the cohesive, overlapping national continuity plan vital to the continued performance of essential government functions.

The exercise focused on coordination between federal agencies and tested Federal Executive Branch Continuity alert, notification, and deployment procedures as well as interagency continuity communications. Emergency Relocation Group members were sent by their respective agencies to pre-planned alternate locations and asked to implement COOP procedures.

Hi there

Sorry for the delay in getting back to you.

Things I'd like to discuss with the secretary and Mr. Fugate regarding continuity of government:

- Their assessment of current readiness in dealing with continuity issues;
- Status of review. This was an issue that got a lot of attention at the end of the Bush administration, and I understand that there were decisions and recommendations made at the very end of Bush re COG that were passed on to Obama. Are those still under review and if so, where do things stand?
- Balance between DHS/fema and the White House in coordinating response and decision-making in times of crisis.

Dear Sean and Sara,

World News Tonight has high interest in the swine flu outbreak and wanted to put in a request for Secretary Napolitano to be interviewed tonight by Dan Harris in a two way interview on World News Tonight. I know we will see her at the White House briefing but we also wanted to have the interview with the Secretary to add some additional perspective for our viewers and the public about some of the health concerns and what DHS is doing.

We could pretape the interview if needed but would prefer for it to be a live two-way interview.

Please let me know. Thank you for your consideration.

Also, talking to MSNBC about doing a taped interview with S1 at 11:15 a.m. tomorrow. Since S1 will already be at the WH, can we just try to do the taped interview at the WH if it works for MSNBC?

And what time would we do BBC interview tomorrow?

Thanks!

Here's the issue I have on my end...

The camera we are using to pre-tape is the same camera that's being used for a live show during that time and we have hits coming from that location at the top of the hour (11a). If 10:45a is the only option, then we would need the secretary in the seat with Norah BY 10:45a. So if the secretary is running late for any reason, that may put the interview in jeopardy.

I would feel better if we kept it at 11:15am to ensure that we have time built in for contingencies...

Let me know if that is a problem.

Thank you.

Hi Sara,

Thanks so much for setting up the CNN International interview with Secretary Napolitano tomorrow at 1.35 pm ET. Per our conversation, we will do the interview right after the CNN US interview from the Russell Rotunda. This will be a taped interview with CNN International anchor, Jim Clancy, for about 5 to 7 minutes.

We would like to talk to Secretary Napolitano about the increasingly volatile situation with the Mexican drug cartels. The violence has now spilled into the US and we would like to discuss what is being done to beef up the border. Secretary of State Hillary Clinton will be visiting Mexico shortly- will this issue be on her agenda? These are some of the issues that we would like to discuss with Secretary Napolitano.

If you have any questions or concerns, please do not hesitate to get in touch with me.

Many thanks again for helping arrange this interview.

Sara, Amy, Nick,

We are getting requests for Nancy Ward for a few of the Sunday Morning news shows (CNN and ABC so far) while she is still in the Fargo area. I have learned from experience that these are far easier to line up and control on the ground. Ed Conley has directed Jerry DeFelice, cc line C: (b)(6), in Fargo, to be the central coordinator for these national interviews. If we have any locked in by the time we publish our ESF-15 summary, they will be include there. Either way, Jerry will update this distribution group with the line-up tonight and again first thing in the morning so everyone has common visibility.

Jerry and folks there will work to incorporate both ND and MN messaging, leadership, and local-state-tribal-federal actions in each interview.

Hi ME-

We are locked in for an interview with CNN tomorrow at 2:30 p.m. EST tomorrow, March 28th. Topic – North Dakota floods. All details are below. Jan has approved this. Also, there will be a make-up person on hand to do S1's make-up when she arrives. Sean will be staffing. There will be NO memo as S1 will need to be briefed by NOC or someone with the most up-to-date info on the situation right before she goes on.

If you have questions or need any other details please let me know.

Thank you!

Swine Flu Interview Requests

1) CNN would like to have her on American Morning sometime this week.

CNN would also like a brief interview with anchor Kyra Phillips. Kyra would like to talk about the steps the DHS is taking to protect Americans from swine flu. Ideally, we would like to do this between 1 and 3pm, but we might be able to do a pre-tape before 1pm if that works better with your schedule.

3) Fox wants her on one of two shows tomorrow.

Shepard Smith would like to interview the Secretary during "Fox Report" in the 7pm hour. If that is undoable (due to timing) he also anchors "Studio B" during the 3pm hour and could interview her sometime then.

Greta Van Sustran – sometime LIVE during 10 p.m.
Catherine Herridge would like 5 p.m. with her.
Neil Cavuto would like her on his show during the 4 p.m. hour.

Contact: Mike Levine

4) We would be looking to do the interview at your earliest convenience, for one of the following NPR programs:

1—either for All Things Considered (or for a reporter piece to air tomorrow)

2- between 5 am – 7 am ET, LIVE, for Morning Edition

3—between 12 noon – 4 pm ET, pre-taped, for All Things Considered (or LIVE between 4 pm and 6 pm ET.)

(b)(6)

6) 5-minute television interview with Matt Frei, Chief Anchor of BBC World News America?

The interview could be done anytime today before 7pm EST or live on top of the hour at 7pm and would focus on Swine Flu and US monitoring strategy and efforts to contain the disease.

The interview would air BOTH in the US (on BBC America at 7pm and 10pm) and internationally (on BBC World and BBC News).

Hi Sara,

Good to speak with you today. Sorry today didn't work out with the Secretary but we are hoping she can join us tomorrow to respond to a report that will be out tomorrow from the Southern Poverty Law Center that talks about the "2nd wave" – the strengthening of militias across the country. Here's an excerpt:

In fact, threats and violence from the radical right already are accelerating (see last section of this report, a list of 75 domestic terrorist plots and rampages since 1995). In recent months, men with antigovernment, racist, anti-Semitic or pro-militia views have allegedly committed a series of high-profile murders – including the killings of six law enforcement officers since April. Most of these recent murders and plots seem to have been at least partially prompted by Obama's election.

We're flexible on timing (anytime between 4-7pm) is preferred. We could possibly pretape as well. Is this possible?

Pierre Thomas with ABC called to see if S1 will be doing interviews or talking anytime soon about the NYC/Denver stuff. He thought that this might be a good time for him to sit down with S1. He said that even if this isn't the time for a longer sit-down interview that he would appreciate it if we'd consider doing a shorter interview on this topic with him.

Also, please see below – CBS Early Show is asking if S1 will be talking about this anytime soon.

Hi Sara

Just checking in with you again to see if the Secretary is yet commenting on the 3 arrests this weekend? We are very interested in talking with her at the first opportunity.

9/25/2009

I would like to request an interview with Secretary Napolitano for the CBS Early Show on Monday September 21, 2009 to discuss the arrest of 3 men over the weekend in Colorado and New York in connection with an alleged terror plot. The interview would be live via satellite at 7:04am with Harry Smith and Maggie Rodriguez and we could do the interview from the DHS studio.

I'd like to discuss the details with you further by phone. Please let me know how best to reach you or please call me at (b)(6)

Thank you.

May 8, 2009

Memo to: Ed Donovan, public affairs, Secret Service, DHS
From: National Journal magazine, reporter Alexis Simendinger
RE: Interview request, for short profile of Director Mark Sullivan for National Journal's Decision Makers 2009 issue

Every four years, National Journal publishes a special magazine issue titled Decision Makers devoted to profiles of the top 300 or so administration officials spanning the White House and executive departments and agencies. I'm assigned to write a profile of Director Sullivan. Our effort to speak to hundreds of new appointees and holdovers is well known to the White House, with a green light from Chief of Staff Emanuel.

The profiles are usually short (250 words or so), use photographs, and include some similar background about every subject. The better ones also include some quotes and general insights from the profiled official, or others who know that person and his/her job. An interview is really helpful. We also track some biographical data from every official to develop a useful overall survey for an article that describes the appointees in the new administration.

I'd like to request some brief interview time with Mr. Sullivan. It's more fun in person, but phone is fine. Our photographer would like to visit the director to take a photograph for use with the issue (we do not publish file or wire photos for this project). National Journal's deadline for this project is by May 22.

Please let me know if you have any questions.

Thanks much,

Alexis Simendinger
Correspondent

09-431	Duane Schrag		4/10/2009	This is a request under the Freedom of Information Act for a document FEMA has. This document relates to the emergency declaration issued for Chapman, Kansas, in the wake of a tornado that hit June 11, 2008. The emergency declaration was made on or about July 9, 2008. The Chapman USD 473 school district is making preparations to rebuild its schools, and has applied for disaster assistance. Before the tornado struck, the elementary and middle schools were on the same lot, and shared common spaces. After the tornado, a question arose as to whether it was feasible to build both on the same lot, or whether a new location would be acquired and two separate attendance centers built. In October 2008 FEMA granted the school district permission to acquire a separate location for the elementary school. Before that permission was granted, FEMA performed or studied a cost-benefit analysis that explored various alternatives for the building. This request is for a copy of the cost-benefit analysis.

09-477	G.W. Schultz		4/28/2009	I request access to and copies of the following documents held by your agency: In March of this year, the Inspector General for the Department of Homeland Security released a report on FEMA's monitoring of homeland security and emergency preparedness grants. The report number is 01G-09-38. The report title is "Improvements Needed in Federal Emergency Management Agency Monitoring of Grantees." According to the top of page five in the report. FEMA officials conducted unplanned site reviews during 2007 of State Homeland Security Program spending in the U.S. territories of American Samoa and Puerto Rico. It appears from the report that the site reviews were conducted by the Financial Accountability and Oversight Division within the Grant Programs Directorate. I am requesting any and all documents related to these two site reviews. This request should include but not be limited to any and all communications such as letters, memos and e-mails discussing or mentioning the site reviews. In addition, I'm am requesting any and all performance, management and financial audits of grant spending related to awards managed, overseen or distributed by the Department of Homeland Security to the following U.S. territories: Guam, American Samoa, Puerto Rico, the Virgin Islands and the Mariana Islands. The scope of this request should include January 1, 2001. to the date of this letter.
09-478	Brenda A. Freeman, Esq.		4/28/2009	I request that a copy of [REDACTED] (b)(7)(c) entire FEMA especially concerning his/her application for FEMA Individual and Households Assistance, including but not limited to, inspection reports, notes, documents, pictures, electronic correspondence, from inspectors and other FEMA employees who have reviewed or made decisions on his/her file regarding determinations of award amounts or assistance granted or not granted, be provided to me.

09-488	Jerry Sorluccho		4/29/2009	I am requesting copies of all notes, reports, documents, and notices of public hearings related to MRR-2-08-1 issued by David I. Maurstad, Assistant Administrator Mitigation Directorate on September 8, 2008. Specifically those related to the change of policy reflected in VII. Policy: which identifies eligible wildfire activities as "defensible space projects," and goes on further In section C. Ineligible Wildfire Activities it goes on to state that the "development or enhancement of fire suppression capability, through the purchase of equipment or resources, such as cisterns (not related to water hydration systems) are considered ineligible activities." There is no justification given for the change of policy, which constitutes a new interpretation of the Robert T. Stafford Disaster Relief and Emergency Assistance Act (Public Law 93-288) as amended. This is particularly curious since on July 11, 2008, Assistant Administrator, David Maurstad determined that our project (PDMC-PJ-01-NH-2008-003) to install dry well cisterns in the Town of Littleton was "deemed eligible, cost effective, and feasible" for further review—a process through which the Town of Littleton was moving with diligence. We were not notified by FEMA Region 1 until March 18, 2009 that the project was no longer eligible to receive Pre-Disaster Mitigation funding: fully six months after the policy change. Direct communication with Mr. Maurstad is no longer possible: Mr. Maurstad's resignation from FEMA was effective on September 13, 2003, five days after he issued the order.

09-602	Debbie Johnson		6/19/2009	I am writing you to request information on monies received or scheduled to receive on a property that we are lien holders on. The property sustained extensive damages due to Hurricane Ike in September, 2008. We are in the process of foreclosing on the property due to non-payment. During our investigation I went out and did inspection at the location and the property is totally destroyed and only the slab and pillars still remain. The insurance policy we have in our files expired in June, 2008 and we believe that the borrower received monies or damages to repair her home.

To the best of my knowledge the only disaster that qualifies for that is the "Super Tuesday Tornado" in February 2008. According to the SBA there should be at least 428 FEMA registered businesses that easily fall under this category. My goal is to get as many names, addresses, and phone numbers as possible to make them aware of the services of the SBDC and the SBA.

09-775	Ken Overstreet		8/28/2009	), I demanding that FEMA supply all documents regarding the purchase of the subject RV trailers by their present occupants. As part of the FOIA Demand, I am demanding all documents and pamphlets descr bing the procedure and contacts be produced within twenty (20) business days ... via Email and PDF attachments.
09-776	Ken Overstreet		8/28/2009	Am requesting the new policy on FEMA travel trailers. I understand that FEMA RV travel trailers are now available for purchase (By the present occupants) http://articles.latimes.com/2009/jun/04/nation/na-katrina-trailers4 I would like the details about how to proceed with the purchase of a FEMA trailer. I also understand that the formaldehyde class action lawsuits have been dismissed. The formaldehyde liability should be virtually nill and should actually ZERO if the purchaser signs a waiver of liability. http://formaldehydefacts.blogspot.com/2008/11/Vjudge-rejects-class-action-in-fema.html I understand that the FEMA trailers fall into 3 categories FEMA Trailers (Totally white, no watertanks, no sewer tanks) RV travel trailers, and Mobile Homes. It appears from the articles and policy that only the classic white tankless FEMA trailers are still being frowned on. The RV types simply do not fall into this category. I understand that there are over 30,000 FEMA travel trailers sitting on vacant lots.
